CAPONE TO BEGIN PRISON TERM ON BEING SENTENCED

Hearing on Income Tax Evasion and Dry Law Conspiracy Reset for July 30 at Attorney's Request.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 29.—Sentencing of "Scarface" Al Capone on his plea of guilty to prohibition conspiracy and violation of the Federal income tax laws was reset for July 30 today upon motion of the gang chief's counsel. Capone was to have been sentenced tomorrow. The Government made no objection to deferment of the time for pronouncing sentence, and U. S. District Judge James H. Wilkerson granted the petition.

Capone's attorney stipulated that the gangster would begin serving his sentence immediately after the hearing July 30.

It has been indicated Capone's sentence will be two and a half years.

Capone was not in court. His attorney, Michael Abert, told the court that the gang leader had some business litigation in Florida, that his son was ill, and that he had had little time recently to be with his family.

"Your Honor, I would like to leave one thought with you while you are considering the case, and that is that the defendant has been sentenced to a term longer than 18 months on a plea of guilty to an income tax violation and 18 months to two years on a plea of guilty to conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws."

"But there are conspiracies and conspiracies, income tax violations and income tax violations," replied Judge Wilkerson. "However, I will not consider the term of sentence until after all the evidence and the facts in the case have been submitted to the court."

Lois Long in Cross Bill Declares She Lived in 'Abject Terror' of Cartoonist.

By the Associated Press. RENO, Nev., June 29.—Lois Long, wife of Peter Arno, obtained a divorce from the cartoonist here today on a cross complaint which charged that she lived in "abject terror" of Arno because he was violently abusive on "hundreds of occasions."

Miss Long did not personally appear in court, her testimony being offered by deposition. Arno was there. He dragged her from the courtroom he dragged her from the courtroom he dragged her from the courtroom.

Within two months after their marriage at Stamford, Conn., on Aug. 12, 1927, Arno became subject to "outbursts of jealousy," his wife said. On one occasion, she said, he dragged her from the table at which she was dining with a friend, and there were "several occasions" when he struck her. They separated Nov. 10, 1930.

Arno will pay $8000 alimony the first year, $7000 for each of the two succeeding years, and $6000 a year thereafter. Two hundred dollars a month is to go to support of their daughter, Patricia, whose custody will be divided.

Arno's true name is Curtis Peters Jr.

10 PERSONS KILLED IN VOTING DISORDERS

Foreign Minister Llerroux
Said to Be Leading Candidate for Chief Executive—Franco Gets Seat.

By the Associated Press.
MADRID, June 29.—On the basis of incomplete returns, Minister of the Interior Miguel Maura issued a statement today indicating that the Conservative Republican-Socialist bloc, dominated by provisional President Niceto Alcalá Zamora, had won a majority of the 479 Deputies' seats yesterday in the first elections since the fall of the monarchy of Alfonso XIII.

While the complete vote may not be tabulated until tomorrow, the members of the Cabinet, with the possible exception of the President himself, were held certain of election.

Ten persons were killed in disorders throughout the nation. The capital itself was quiet, but a mob attempted to attack a priest and burn his church in a suburb on the ground that he had battered for votes. He was rescued by police. A purported plot at the Tablada Airfield near Sevilla was nipped by the arrest of Maj. Ramon Franco and a display of force by Gen Sanjurjo.

Clashes With Authorities.
Brushes between rioters and authorities—some of them sanguinary—occurred in Alcala, San Sebastian, Huelva, Lallana, Almedilla, Malaga, Carballo and other points. Catholic Church partisans, communists and hoodlums were blamed for the disorders.

Official returns showed that the party of Col. Francisco Macia, Provisional President of Catalonia, captured Barcelona and the province, with the Catalan regionalists second and Foreign Minister Alejandro Lerroux's radical republicans third.

Col. Macia was cheered when he told a large election audience that the vote upheld Catalonia's desires for autonomous statehood within a Federal republic. "We are our own masters now," he said. "If the Constituent Assembly rejects our demands we will continue to Barcelona for further instructions."

Maj. Franco and his supporters were defeated in Sevilla, surprisingly enough, but he was elected from Barcelona, riding in on the victory of the Macia victory. He telegraphed President Alcalá Zamora, denying he had fomented an uprising in Sevilla and describing his arrest as "plain kidnapping."

Major Franco was permitted to proceed to Barcelona. It was explained that since he had been elected a deputy he had no immunity from prosecution. The flyer, who last week was dismissed as chief of the air corps, is recovering from a fracture of the leg suffered when a speaker's stand collapsed during his campaign as a "revolutionary party candidate."

Later Franco was brought to Madrid by airplane and was transferred to a military hospital, pending further arrangements for his departure for Barcelona.

Foreign Minister Lerroux was hailed as the leading candidate to succeed President Alcalá Zamora. On the basis of his election from seven districts, he must renounce six of the seats and new deputies will be elected. Senor Zamora was badly beaten in Barcelona and Zaragoza but apparently won a seat from the city province of Jaen.

Other prominent candidates who won were former Minister of Finance Calvo Sotelo; Jose Sanchez Guerra, long-time monarchist opponent of Alfonso; Prof. Miguel Unamuno, Senor Perez de Ayala, Ambassador to London; former Governor of Madrid, Eduardo Ortega Gasset; Director of Public Safety Galarza, and former Cabinet Minister Francisco Bergamini.

Salvador de Madariaga, Spanish writer, scholar and Ambassador to the United States, also won a seat in the National Assembly. He was chosen a deputy from Girona.

It was believed that the total vote cast constituted a record. One thousand candidates representing 24 parties participated. One deputy was elected for every 50,000 population in the 49 provinces. The

NICETO ALCALÁ ZAMORA

PROVINCIAL President, whose Conservative Republican party obtained a majority over radicals and monarchists in the first election in Spain since the departure of Alfonso XIII. On the basis of incomplete returns, it appears, however, that Alcalá Zamora may not be elected President.

Assembly is scheduled to convene July 14 and proceed at once to write a new constitution.

In spite of the fact that women are not allowed to vote, the only two women candidates won seats in the National Assembly. Victoria Kent, first woman director of prisons, and Clara Campoamor, an attorney, were elected from Madrid on the strength of the Republican-Socialist victory.

Provisional officials of the Spanish republic characterized partial election returns as "the death knell" of monarchist efforts to return King Alfonso or any other claimant to the Spanish throne.

"The voting in towns and cities conclusively showed the people want a republic and do not want a monarch," said Provisional President Zamora.

"The vote clearly demonstrated that Alfonso cannot return," declared Foreign Minister Lerroux. Largo Caballero, Minister of Labor, said the Spanish people "showed an ardent desire to maintain the republic and squashed all hopes of a return to the monarchial regime."

Alfonso Silent on Outcome of Elections in Spain.
By the Associated Press.
LONDON, June 29.—Apparently unconcerned over yesterday's Spanish elections which seemed to have virtually written "finis" to his career as King, Alfonso XIII, the deposed monarch, spent the week-end in the seclusion of the country estate of friends.

Except for a brief appearance at the Wimbledon tennis matches, Alfonso has remained in the background.

It is known that Alfonso is contemplating a hurried trip to Fontainebleau, France, after which he will return to England with Queen Victoria.

WIDOW AND MAN HELD IN ILLINOIS FARMER'S MURDER

Each Accuses the Other of Shooting Victim as He Milked Cow Three Months Ago.

By the Associated Press.
EFFINGHAM, Ill., June 29.—The body of William Hoffman, 35-year-old ex-service man who had been missing since March 27, has been found buried in the driveway leading to his barn. Hoffman's wife and Ernest Smith are being held without bond in connection with the slaying.

According to officers, both Mrs. Hoffman and Smith have accused the other of the killing.

The finding of the body of Hoffman was brought about by the arrest of Smith; for whom Mrs. Hoffman swore out a warrant on a charge of assault.

When arrested by the Sheriff, Smith said he would tell where the body of Hoffman could be found if the Sheriff would arrest the woman also. After their arrest, each said the other killed Hoffman with a shotgun while he was milking a cow.

In all here, both Smith and Mrs. Hoffman refused to talk to reporters. Smith is 28 and Mrs. Hoffman is 30. He was helping with the farm work and lived at the farm with Hoffman was slain. The body was found under a 14 inches of refuse. A special grand jury probably will be called.

BERLIN, June 29.—Otto Hillig and Holger Holiris landed at Tempelhof Airfield today in the Liberty, the airplane in which they crossed the Atlantic Ocean to Copenhagen last week. They brought with them Frank Bridges, a friend of Hillig's from Liberty, N. Y.

The aviators were welcomed by the Danish Ambassador and by officers of Luftflotte, the German air line. The flyers will visit Hillig's birthplace, Steinbrücke, and other places.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, June 29.—Otto Hillig and Holger Holiris, who last week flew across the Atlantic to Copenhagen by way of Germany, continue to receive the acclaim of Denmark, native land of Holiris.

The flyers have become popular among the people of Copenhagen and elaborate functions have been held in their honor. These will be climaxed Wednesday, when King Christian X has commanded them to dinner at his summer residence at Marselisborg.

The visitors were guests Saturday at a gala banquet at the town hall, where they were greeted by clashes of lures (long curved war trumpets used by the Vikings) the highest honor accorded visitors to Copenhagen. Members of the Cabinet and other high dignitaries received them and a throng in the festive hall cheered for Holiris and Hillig.

French Cabinet Stands By Its Reply to Hoover

Hoover proposal—political as well as financial—were examined by the American Secretary and the head of the French Government, and at the conclusion of his conversation with Secretary Mellon, Laval personally dictated this communiqué to the press:

"Another conference was held today when M. Laval received Mr. Mellon, United States Ambassador. The French Government, and at the conclusion of his conversation with Secretary Mellon, Laval personally dictated this communiqué to the press:

"The financial newspaper L'Information said tonight America's representatives in the debt negotiations had proposed to Premier Laval at their afternoon conference that Germany's unconditional annuity for the year of the proposed moratorium be repaid over a period of 15 years and the conditional annuity be spread over 37 years. The newspaper said the French asked payment of the unconditional installment at the end of the period of moratorium and of the conditional annuity in five years.

No effort was made on either side to hide the fact that negotiations over the war debt and reparations holiday had reached a most tense point. Inquiry as to what portion of the discussion moved the greatest obstacle who had brought the entire question was involved and that it was difficult for any one portion of the negotiations to be singled out as the cause of the greatest trouble.

It was explained after the morning meeting between Mellon and Laval that the French Premier, who had to consider the Chamber of Deputies, found it hard to make concessions necessary to reach a rapid accord.

The seriousness of the lack of agreement between the American Secretary and the Premier was shown, it was said, by the fact that Laval suddenly decided to call a meeting of the Cabinet, presided over by President Doumer, and to thrash out the whole matter.

"Very Difficult Day."
The day's sessions will be "very difficult," said Mellon just before the morning's conference began. The American delegates said they would maintain strict silence regarding progress of the conversations, as a diplomatic courtesy, leaving explanations to their hosts, but reserved the right to make statements in case French communications should lack clearness on the American attitude toward any question.

It was understood the difficulties referred to by the spokesman include determination of the time at which Germany would reimburse France for the credit she advances as a result of not guarding the unconditional annuity of the Young plan, as well as the credits advanced to other countries.

They have been stated in this manner: First, France wants to be assured that other Central European nations besides Germany will be aided by the Hoover plan.

Second, she wishes to be guaranteed that the Young plan will be re-installed at the end of the suspended installment.

Third, she is interested in knowing whether Germany will be obliged to remit interest on the suspended installment.

Shortly after the opening of the morning meeting, the semi-official Havas News Agency issued a statement on the French viewpoint of the difficulties, as follows: "It is believed that the American delegates, while accepting the French counter-proposals in their broad lines, will endeavor to secure acceptance of certain modifications in the French standpoint."

Through the French Government, Mellon will be kept informed of the daily position of the Italian liner on which Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson is coming to France so that he can communicate with him by radio as he pleases. It is understood that President Hoover is in touch with Paris by cable as often as the situation requires.

Conversation in the lobbies of the Chamber concentrated today on the puzzling features of the invitation extended to Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius of Germany to come to Paris for a friendly meeting with French statesmen. Premier Laval made his invitation clear in a speech before the Chamber Saturday and followed this up with a statement confirming his talk with German Ambassador von Hoesch.

The Deputies considered this was a clear-cut offer and the American delegates got the impression that the Germans were to come as guests, but apparently some hitch occurred and the Germans prefer not to come until the Franco-American conversations are completed.

A number of the Deputies attributed the delay to German hesitancy in giving the political guarantees for the future which Laval clearly indicated he wanted.

GERMAN LEADERS TO VISIT MUSSOLINI

Likely to Defer Conferences in Paris and Rome Until After Britons' Trip to Berlin.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, June 29.—An invitation for Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius to come to Rome for an informal conference with Premier Mussolini was received at the foreign office this morning and forthwith accepted. The date remains to be fixed.

As in the case of the proposed visit to Paris, the German officials likely will defer their departure for Rome until after the conferences with Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Henderson of Great Britain and Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson about the middle of July.

American Ambassador Sackett called on Curtius for more than an hour today. It was understood to be in connection with the negotiations of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon in Paris.

Premier Laval has extended a formal offer for the meeting in Paris as soon as the Franco-American war debt conversations are concluded.

Chancellor Bruening is said to cherish the bids from Paris and Rome as regards to his recent radio address attesting to Germany's interest in pan-European collaboration. He is eager to take advantage of the offers as soon as the press of affairs at home and in other capitals let up.

Washington, June 29.—Some additional hope appeared in moratorium discussions here today with the deadline proposed for initiation of the debt holiday less than 48 hours away. As negotiations continued, officials emphasized that President Hoover intended the suspension of payments on inter-governmental debts to apply to the year beginning at midnight tomorrow.

Hope was injected by formal acceptance from two nations close to France. The opinion was expressed that the indecisions by Poland and Czech co-Slovakia indicated a belief in these countries that France's still-pending objections would not prove insurmountable.

Meanwhile, Representative Beck (Rep.), Pennsylvania, has advocated an international economic conference to make permanent the benefits of the moratorium, while Representative Cannon (Dem.), Missouri, said he thought modification of the Versailles treaty would give more permanent relief. Some administration sources looked skeptically upon both propositions, advancing the opinion that either would involve questions President Hoover was anxious to avoid.

BRUSSELS, June 29.—The Cabinet Council today approved the Belgian reply to President Hoover's proposal for a war debts moratorium, accepting the plan in principle and expressing a hope that it would contribute toward overcoming the serious difficulties in the Belgian Government's present position.

The reply emphasized the speed position of Belgium regarding reparations, and said it was hoped the would be taken into due consideration when the time comes to establish the bases on which the Hoover scheme will be put into execution.

Raskob, accompanied by his daughter Elizabeth, arrived from a European tour last night on the Bremen. The debt moratorium, he said, would in no way affect the coming political campaign, because "such a constructive step should not be weighed politically, as of too far reaching importance."

WILMINGTON, Del., June 29.—Pierre S. du Pont has disapproved a plan to erect a monument to him in Wilmington in recognition of his public benefactions.

An unidentified donor some time ago set aside funds for the monument and Chevalier Anthony Belo, sculptor of Astoria, La., was commissioned to make the statue.

Du Pont, prior to sailing for Europe last week, sent a letter to Belo expressing his disapproval of the plan. The letter said:

"My attention has been called to a letter regarding the making of a statue of me to be erected somewhere in Wilmington. I wish to record that I am unalterably opposed to this project and request the return of any photographs that you may have obtained for the purpose of obtaining my likeness. The project does not have my consent or approval and I shall oppose its carrying out in every way possible. I trust that you will proceed no further in the matter."

FIVE MEN BREAK JAIL AT CLAYTON, ONE RECAPTURED

Earl Conklin, 22, Is Found

Rooming House in East St. Louis.

By the Associated Press.
CLAYTON, Mo., June 29.—Five men broke out of the Clayton Jail last night, but one, Earl Conklin, 22, was recaptured today. Police and deputy sheriffs are searching for the others.

The captured man was Earl Conklin, 22 years old, 2325 Kentucky avenue, St. Louis county. Conklin and his companions in the jail-break all were held on burglary charges, awaiting action of the grand jury.

The others: Russell Storck, 22, 1900 Madison street; James McPherson, 21, 9 South Sixth street; Raymond McKay, 18, 7314 South Levee, and Howard Hayes, 22, 7314 South Levee.

Remembering that Conklin was arrested June 9, in the company of Beatrice Conklin, 3194 East Broadway, East St. Louis, deputies, accompanied by East St. Louis police, located the address at 2:30 p. m. Conklin was in bed and surrendered without resistance.

Released because of the heat from their strong steel cells, to a slightly cooler corridor on the second floor, barred off by a steel door was cut at one end and bent out of the way, a heavy screen was removed and the prisoners let themselves down an improvised rope made of straps used for holding bunks in the cells. While Conklin, third of the men to climb down, was descending, the rope broke and he fell about seven feet, landing without injury. The others were forced to drop the last seven feet.

BISHOP BEAUCHAMP, METHODIST, DIES AT 62

He Was Head of Campaign to Raise $35,000,000 for Southern Church.

By the Associated Press. RICHMOND, Va., June 29.—Bishop William Benjamin Beauchamp, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, died at Stuart Circle Hospital last night. He was 62 years old.

Three weeks ago Bishop Beauchamp was taken to the hospital suffering from pernicious anemia from which he failed to rally. He was head of the centenary campaign of the church, which he carried through to success by raising $35,000,000 for world-wide missions. On his elevation to the episcopacy in 1922 he was placed in charge of European missions. In 1928 Bishop Beauchamp was chosen president of the World Brotherhood, an international organization of Christian laymen with headquarters in London. From 1926 to 1930 he was general superintendent of the North and South Georgia conferences and of the mission in Mexico. The following year he had the Episcopal district embracing the Baltimore and Virginia conferences.

Born at Farnham, Va., Bishop Beauchamp attended public schools and Randolph Macon College at Ashland and Vanderbilt University. He held pastorates in Louisville, Ky., and Danville and Portsmouth, Va., and was stationed at Nashville, Tenn., for many years. He is survived by eight children.

NINE YEARS IN PENITENTIARY FOR HOLDUP WITH WEAPON

Five Youths Get Long Terms at Booneville on Pleas of Guilty.

Harry Ryan was sentenced to nine years in the penitentiary today when he pleaded guilty of robbery with a deadly weapon. One year was deducted from the usual sentence because of information Ryan gave authorities while a prisoner in the city jail. He held up Emil Breitkreitz in his grocery at 1500 Menard street, taking $30. Charles Spurling, 19, who had served a workhouse term for auto theft, was sentenced to 12 years at Booneville Reformatory for robbery. With Woodrow Wilson, 18, he held up four men in Lafayette Park, taking $30. Wilson was sentenced to 19 years. Both pleaded guilty. Frank Dimicelli, 20, who with Wilson held up Tony Pappas in his restaurant at 2301 South Broadway, and William Kramer, owner of a shoe store at 2703 South Jefferson, obtaining a total of $45, also pleaded guilty of robbery and was sentenced to 10 years at Booneville.

Virgil Spaulding, 19, and Eugene Johnson, 18, Negroes, were sent to Booneville for 10 years for two robberies. They held up the drug store of Rudolph Weppig at 3901 Enright avenue for $10, and the dry goods store of Mrs. Elizabeth Gerson, 3429 Market street, where they took 10 cents and a spool of thread. They pleaded guilty to both charges.

PAIR HELD AT KANSAS CITY FOR MURDER OF ILLINOIS MAN

Farmers Told of Seeing Them Place Body in Front of Moving Train.

By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Byron Elliott of Fairfield, Ill., were under arrest here today in connection with the slaying at Fairfield of McKinley Wilson. Officers here were informed a warrant charging first degree murder had been issued in Wayne County, Illinois. The couple was taken into custody at the Jockey Club at Riverside Park.

Robert Martin, a Clay County Deputy Sheriff, arrested Elliott and his wife, whom he recognized by a description which Marlon Ellis, Wayne County (Ill.) Sheriff sent throughout the Central West.

Sheriff Ellis said over long-distance telephone that Wilson, 30 years of age, had been a guest of the Elliotts at a party two weeks ago, which also was attended by Frank Brown, an ex-convict, now at liberty on $10,000 bond in connection with Wilson's death.

The Wayne County Sheriff said the charges against the Elliotts and Brown were based partly upon the story of Wellington Wells, a Fairfield farmer, who reported he had seen the couple carry Wilson's body from their home and throw it in front of a moving train.

FATHER OF 8 SHOT TO DEATH

By the Associated Press. CLEVELAND, O., June 29.—Anthony Santaro, 41 years old, died in a hospital here today with a bullet wound in his head and bruises on his head and body while police redoubled their search for gangsters who last week shot and killed two men.

Santaro, unemployed, was found lying in the street last night by John Wilamovsky, a night watchman, who said he heard the shot. Because of the bruises, police think he was beaten before the shot was fired. Police said Santaro had a record at headquarters and was known as a laborer of quiet manner. He was the father of eight children and had been out of work for four months. Police advance the theory the man was attacked by robbers.

GARY, Ind., June 29.—The Gary Trust and Savings Bank closed today and started reorganization plans. Harry Arnold, president, said that depositors would be paid in full, and that the doors were shut to protect them after withdrawal amounts to almost $500,000.

WOMAN ENDS LIFE BY POISON

Leaves Note Saying Man Failed to Keep Promise.

Miss Gladys McManis, 31 years old, killed herself yesterday by swallowing poison at a rooming house at 4315 Washington boulevard, where she resided. In two notes found in her room she said she was taking her life because a man had failed to keep his promise to marry her. Some months ago, she stated, she had given her child to a wealthy woman in Oklahoma who had adopted it.

PUBLIC WORKS CONSTRUCTION URGED BY COL. ARTHUR WOODS
By the Associated Press
NEW YORK, June 29.—Large-scale construction of needed public works by national, state and local governments during periods of depression is urged by Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's Committee on Unemployment, in an article in the American Architect. Such construction, he said, can keep men at work if planned and timed wisely.
He estimated public works at approximately $3,500,000,000 in a normal year. This is about one-third of all construction and about 80 per cent of the total, he said, was paid to labor.

8 GLORIOUS DAYS BIG FOUR ROUTE

Wives

Do your husbands
think this about the salads that you serve?

DELICIOUS!
THE BEST SALAD I EVER ATE
SUCH FLAVOR!

If you would like to see your husband eating health-building salads more frequently, try this delicious, double whipped Hellmann's Mayonnaise at once. Its appeal to men is really extraordinary.
The reason for its unique flavor? Carefully chosen ingredients, first of all. Breakfast eggs, special salad oils, thrice strained vinegar, an unusual blend of Far East Spices. All mixed to the exact proportions of its famous old French recipe.
And then double whipping... a special scientific blending process that mixes the ingredients to a harmony of perfection.
Try Hellmann's Mayonnaise on the next salad that you serve your husband. If either of you feels that it does not measure up to every promise we make, please take back the jar and get your money.
Get a pint or half-pint jar at your grocer's today. Hellmann's is the mayonnaise that always has been identified by the Blue Ribbon on the label.

SOCIOLOGIST DISCUSSES RISE IN DEPENDENCY

Washington U. Professor Says
Factors That Cause Wealth
Also Increase Poverty.

The same factors that have conferred wealth on the few have thrust poverty upon a greater number than ever previously impoverished without danger to society, Prof. Frank J. Bruno of Washington University said in yesterday's Community Forum broadcast by KMOX.

Prof. Bruno, who is head of the department of social work, attributed the increasing number of social workers to this spread of poverty and to the growing appreciation of skill as an asset in dealing with poverty and crime. Much of the increase, he said, was due to transfer of the problems of dependency and delinquency to the hands of trained workers from the "volunteer, informal, neighborhood type" of care.

"The complexity of social organization resulting in increased profit, wealth and power to those favorably situated has similarly resulted in decreased opportunity, unemployment and frustration to a larger number than any society has ever yet carried without danger to itself," said Prof. Bruno. "The increase in crime and the increase in the beneficiaries of social agencies are no mere recurrence of innate depravity of human nature. They merely mean that the social organism is not taking care of all its folks as well as it used to. Bigness has been purchased at the cost of justice and the increase in productive efficiency has been purchased at the cost of common humanity."

"It is no accident and no evidence of human depravity that an increase of more than 50 per cent of productive capacity in the United States, accompanied with a decrease of nearly 5 per cent in the number of workers employed, is coincident with this tremendous increase in the so-called social problems. A specific industry or a specific community may forget the displaced folks, but they are still around and they must be cared for."

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR F. E. HENDERSON

Former Chief of Fire Department Died at Kansas City; 63 Years Old.

Funeral services for Frank E.
Henderson, former Chief of the St.
Louis Fire Department, who died Friday in Kansas City, will be held this afternoon at the Mullen undertaking establishment, 5165
Delmar boulevard. Mr. Henderson was 63 years old. Death was due to pneumonia.

Prior to his appointment as Fire Chief, in 1914, Mr. Henderson had worked in the ranks of the Fire Department since 1898, as tillerman for a downtown truck company and in other capacities. He was a Lieutenant and one of the best athletes in the department
when Director of Public Safety Swingley, himself an old firefighter, jumped him over the heads of dozens of older men to make him Chief.

Swingley explained at the time that he wanted a Chief who would lead by example. He was a fire man every second alarm, day or night. He was removed from his place by Director Swingley in April, 1917, after a radical increase had been recorded in fire losses.
Mr. Henderson attributed his ouster to politics.

Following his retirement from the department, Mr. Henderson entered the insurance business. For the last year he and Mrs. Henderson had resided in Kansas City.
Besides the widow, he is survived by two sons, Gale E. and Frank I.
Henderson, of St. Louis, and a daughter, Mrs. M. W. Stout of Kansas City.

YOUNG PAIR SHOT TO DEATH ON ROAD NEAR DALLAS, TEX.

Masked Man Who Held Up Another Couple Later Is Sought as Suspect.

By the Associated Press.
DALLAS, Tex., June 29.—County officers considered they had a tangible lead to follow today in the effort to solve the fatal shooting of Abe Schreiber, 20 years old, Galveston, and P. Uline Corman, 17, Dallas, on an unrequited road
south of this city early yesterday.

They said the clue was a description of an armed and masked man who last night held up a young Dallas pair near the spot where the body of Miss Corman was found.

Schreiber, with a bullet through his heart, was found about 6 a. m.
yesterday, across a barbed wire fence more than a mile from the spot where his sweetheart lay dead.
Their automobile, bloodstained and abandoned, was discovered later in South Dallas.

Money which friends said Schreiber carried was missing from his pockets.

ANOTHER MURDER IN CHICAGO
Frank (Blackie) Scavo Found Shot to Death by Gangsters.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, June 29.—Frank (Blackie) Scavo, 27 years old, was found shot to death yesterday in a farmer's driveway southwest of the city. Police attributed the killing to gangsters.

Automobile tire marks on Scavo's trousers and shirt indicated
the slayers had driven their car
over his body after shooting him down.

To Direct Farm Experiments.

By the Associated Press.
CORVALLIS, Ore., June 29.—
Resignation of James T. Jardine, for the past 11 years director of the Oregon State College agricultural experiment stations to become chief of the office of experiment stations of the United States Department of Agriculture, was announced here last night. Jardine is a brother of William M. Jardine, former Secretary of Agriculture.

WRA Y'S COLUMN

Quo Vadis, Gullible?
WHETHER William Killefer is going with his baseball cohorts has our Browns fans guessing. Eleven victories in 10 days, eight in a row, with three double-headers won and seven games clinched by the margin of a single tally, along with 18 double plays seem to indicate that a new baseball machine has just clicked.

Coming after a depression period in which nine successive defeats had been suffered by the Browns, with a total of only five victories in 26 games, the reversal of form is startling.

Does it represent a solid improvement? Or is it just some sort of midsummer madness? Can the Browns go places with their present equipment?

Since the season began the club has shown improvement in the following particulars:

Developed a good hitting and fielding first baseman from a raw recruit—Burns.

Improved its defensive play considerably.

Developed a recruit pitcher who has started five times, and won four games, without suffering a defeat, finishing four of his five starts.—Hebert.

Maintained a fighting spirit in spite of early defeats, as shown by their one-run successes.

SCHMELING AND STRIBLING, IN GREAT SHAPE, END HARD WORK

ADVANCE SALES NOW $265,000; PROMOTERS ARE ASSURED PROFIT

By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, June 29. — The Stribling-Schmeling world's heavyweight championship fight dedicating Cleveland's new $3,000,000 Municipal Stadium next Friday night will be no million dollar affair, but if it draws $400,000 there will be no walls of protest from the promoters.

This was indicated today when officials of the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Ohio declared they would be "extremely satisfied" if the gate receipts hit the $400,000 mark. Figures revealed for the first time showed $176,000 in cash already in hand, with $80,000 to be added in reservations certainly to be picked up.

Although the advance sale is actually $176,000, the total advance, counting the reservations, amounts to $256,000, thus assuring the promoters of a profit of approximately $100,000. Stribling and Schmeling will get 52 1/2 per cent, with the champion receiving 40 per cent of this amount. The sum of $22,000 will be paid to the city for the rental of the stadium and $14,000 will be spent in providing preliminaries. The corporation will also spend $15,000 in installing seats and another $40,000 in promotion.

Both Stribling and the champion were resting today, their hands working. In preparation for a little boxing tomorrow night, Stribling finished his five weeks' training grind with four rounds of boxing, another round shadow boxing and still another shadow boxing. He worked out before 3,500 spectators, the largest crowd that had seen him in action since his camp was opened. After hitting the showers, Stribling jumped on the scales and tipped the beam at 183 pounds, which is the weight he hopes to carry in the ring when he meets the German titleholder.

Schmeling worked out before a crowd of 4,317 spectators, who paid $1 admission to his camp at Connaught Lake Park. His work was impressive and entirely satisfactory to his handlers. The German boxed four rounds, three against George Panka, Pittsburgh heavyweight, and the last against Tony Marullo, New Orleans veteran. Schmeling set a burning pace and smiled a wide open, toothy smile of thanks for the hearty greeting accorded him by the largest crowd that ever jammed his training camp.

Old-Timers Watch Schmeling. It was "German send-off day," and old-timers' day, crowded into one. German-Americans from this part of Ohio and Western Pennsylvania were on hand to give him a hand. They didn't have much chance to cheer, however, except when the smiling German waved hello and good-by. Old-timers of the ring circled front row benches at the ringside and critically watched every move Schmeling made. Frank Davis of Pittsburgh, one-time world's middleweight champion; Tony Ross, who fought as a heavyweight out of New Castle, Pa.; Tom McMahon, gold-tooth veteran of the heavyweight ring; Jimmy Dime and Jimmy Harris, both old-time managers, and with their eyes glued on Schmeling as he belted Panka with body punches and right crosses to the jaw. All agreed he was in perfect physical condition and that he had an excellent chance of retaining his title.

DIONYS BEATS FIELD OF 17 IN GERMAN DERBY

By the Associated Press.
HAMBURG, Germany, June 29. — Dionys, the favorite, was an easy winner yesterday of the sixty-third running of the German Derby. Adrienne was second. Muscovit third and Granville fourth. Seventeen horses ran. Dionys captured the Elbe prize a few days ago, paid 28 to 10.

Barneveldt Wins Prix de Paris, Worth $41,884

By the Associated Press.
LONGCHAMP, France, June 29. — Because the largest and most fashionable crowd of "La Grande Semaine," Barneveldt, three-year-old owned by Count Olivier de Rivaud, won the Grand Prix de Paris, richest stake of the French racing season, yesterday.

Barneveldt, ridden by Hans Frimholt, won the purse of $41,884 by a short head from Baron Edouard de Rothschild's Taxidom, an outsider. Marcel Boussac's Derby winner, Tourbillon, the favorite, which had whipped Barneveldt consistently throughout the season, finished third.

Barneveldt, by the Winter King out of Black Domino, was rated more or less of an outsider, since he was conceded to have a better chance in the mud, and the race was run over a fast track.

DR. HODGSON AND MRS. AY RUN UP HIGH SCORES IN ARCHERY EVENT

Under a blazing sun the second annual Maplewood archery tournament was held yesterday at the Maplewood High School field under the auspices of the Maplewood Chamber of Commerce and Business Men's Association, which, incidentally, donated the many cups and medals. The larger cups for the winners of the men's and women's division are three-time awards, the others permanent. The tourney was open to all, but entries were only from the St. Louis district.

The shoot was the "double metropolitan round," which consists of 30 arrows to be shot at 100, 50, 60 and 40 yards. Points on the target are as follows: Bull's-eye, 5; red stripe, 3; blue stripe, 1; black stripe, 3; white stripe, 1.

Dr. E. S. Hodgson of the Webster Groves Archery Club, was said to have broken the world's record for the double metropolitan round when he turned in a total score of 1610.

And the Winner—

Of course, you guessed it—Christ Theofiles. That's Jimmy London, under the name he was given at christening and even the least fog of wrestling ad-dict will tell you that London is "in."

"Well, that's the 'form.' If you want to admit there is such a thing as 'form' in wrestling—London has beaten Steele three times and another bout went to a time limit and a draw. Many fans believe London is invincible as a wrestler. Others believe him a masterful showman. All agree that both the merit and the dramatics of wrestling demand that Jimmy win.

But fans will pay good money to see the match and be satisfied, thus indicating that the entertainment rather than the CONTEST is what spectators want.

Optimism in Cleveland.

WHILE pessimism seems to prevail as to the size of the crowd that will view the Stribling-Schmeling fight July 3, there is some reason to believe that the outlook is improving. If it is true that a $200,000 advance sale was in hand three weeks before the fight to date, there may be a $500,000 gate July 3. Promoter Dunn started out on the basis of a $1,000,000 gate, but has altered his guess to $500,000. If even this expectation is realized the country will experience considerable surprise.

The elements that combined to draw the big gates of the past are lacking—also the cash in the pockets of the customers.

BROWN DEFEATS BOEHMER TO WIN M.V. NET TITLE

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, June 29.—Wray D. Brown of St. Louis, and Max Cuervo of Wichita, regained Missouri Valley singles titles in the finals of the thirty-third annual tennis tournament, each conquering a less experienced youngster under a blazing sun at the Rockhill tennis tournament here yesterday.

Brown, who was champion twice previously, was threatened early in his match, but his mastery prevailed when G. H. Boehmer Jr., also of St. Louis, lost his accuracy.

The champion was chased all over the court after placements in the first set which he lost, 4-6. Boehmer, who was 6 years old when Brown played in his first tournament, sloughed off the second set with numerous shots into the net and over the backline.

After taking the second, 6-1, Brown was so fatigued by the heat that he offered to flip a coin for the decision, but officials ruled they must play out. Brown finished off his young opponent, 6-2.

Max Cuervo, who was champion of the Missouri Valley in 1929, conquered little Mary Zita McHale of Dallas, Tex., in the women's final, 6-0, 6-2. Two weeks ago in the Texas State Tourney the Wichita girl defeated Miss McHale, 6-3, 6-1.

Miss Cuervo, with Mary Lou Sutherland, Kans. City, won the doubles title by defeating Miss McHale and Charlotte McQuiston, Dallas.

The junior singles title went to Nelson McInch, Kansas City, who defeated Wilbur E. Fort Worth, Tex., 6-3, 6-5, 6-3.

SPORT SALAD — By — L. C. DAVIS

The Passing Show.

THE Browns, should anyone inquire, Are going like a house afire And throwing sparks about. The boys are right up on their toes, The Red Sox on them turned the hose. But couldn't put 'em out. The Cardinals are in a slump And from the Robins get a bump That jarred 'em fore and aft. But over shoals and over rocks In spite of all their recent shocks The Sarge will steer the craft.

Commencement Day.

THOUGH college men and fair co-ed To flowery helix have soared, Uneasy lies the concrete head Beneath a mortar board.

The Phantom Schooner.

THE idea of late is budding That we will soon see schoom—

ers scudding But still we quaff denatured beer. And sadly sing "The art so near." And yet so far.

Hot Stuff.

See where the Weatherman collaborated with the Americans in making it hot for the English Ryder Cup team.

If those English critics of their Ryder Cup team had been among those present at the opening they would have changed their opinion that their team wasn't so hot.

Some demon statistician has discovered that more pretzels are eaten now than before prohibition. Maybe that's because more beer is being drunk.

Notwithstanding the fact that the new ball will travel just as far if socked right Babe Ruth isn't getting the distance he used to. Maybe he isn't socking it right. Chuck Klein is having better success with the National League apple which has a thicker skin, but Hack Weyer has folded up and will be lucky to turn in a card at 30.

The case of the Brooklyn Robins bears out the theory that the manager makes the team. On word from Robins makes them just as they please.

Rogers Hornsby has a battle royal on his hands. There is the Cards in this corner, the Giants at the other corner with his hand bound up in red tape carrying technical knockout in either mitt.

However, with only one fight at a time on his hands Rogers could never be happy. He's the type that comes out fighting and doesn't shake hands till there is no more fighting.

WARD WORK

success with the National League apple which has a thicker skin but Hack Wilson has folded up and will be lucky to turn in a card at $0.

The case of the Brooklyn Robins bears out the theory that the manager makes the team. One word from Robbie makes them do just as they please.

Rogers Hornsby has a battle royal on his hands. There is the Cards in this corner, the Giants in that corner and Uncle Sam in the other corner with his hand bound up in red tape carrying technical knockout in either mitt.

However, with only one fight at a time on his hands Rogers could never be happy. He's the type that comes out fighting and doesn't shake hands till there is no more fighting.

JOHNNY DATTO DUE TOMORROW; WILL WORK OUT IN NATIONAL GYM

Johnny Datto the Filipino who will meet Davey Abad in the 10-round main event of the 34-round boxing show which will be held at the Delmar outdoor stadium, next Thursday night, will arrive in St. Louis tomorrow morning and complete his training at the National Gymnasium. The show is being sponsored by the Jackson Johnson Jr. Post of the Legion, with Sam Stotsky doing the matchmaking.

Allen Matthews, colored welterweight who has been having an easy time of it knocking out odd-looking opponents at odd moments, will get a chance to show whether or not he can take it as well as punch, when he meets Honey Carter of Chicago. A proof of Carter's shock-absorbing ability may be found in his record and in the fact that he is chief sparring partner for both Mickey Walker and Jackie Fields.

Davey Barry of Springfield who just got through knocking out Peewee Terry, will also meet a good opponent on this card. Woodrow Williams is another of the younger fighters who will be matched with some good opposition.

AMERICAN CREWS WORK OUT FOR HENLEY RACES

By the Associated Press.

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England, June 29.—The Harvard third varsity and the Tabor Academy crew, the two American eight at Henley for the regatta, had only light workouts in the morning, just paddling on regatta course with some short bursts of rowing.

The oarsmen were honor guests at a luncheon at the Phyllis Court Club.

Tobaccos like these require no parching

What good would it do to wrap Camel cigarettes in moisture-proof Cellophane if all of the natural moisture had been parched out beforehand?

Parching, as you probably know, is a high heat process sometimes used in an attempt to reduce the burn and bite of harsh strong tobaccos.

Camels, on the other hand, are a blend of choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos that are so ripe, mild and cool they need no artificial treatment.

Parching tobaccos like these is unnecessary. It could only destroy their delightful aroma and flavor.

We use the Humidor Pack of moisture-proof Cellophane to preserve every vestige of that original flavor. It prevents the loss of natural moisture by evaporation, keeping Camels factory-fresh wherever you buy them.

This air-seal also makes the cigarettes germ-proof, dust-proof and taint-proof.

If you aren't a Camel smoker, switch over to this brand for one whole day. After you have learned how cool and mild they are, how flavorful and fresh, go back to your old brand—if you can.

CAMELS

NO CIGARETTE AFTER-TASTE

Don't remove the moisture-proof Cellophane from your package of Camels after you open it. The Humidor Pack is protection against sweat, dust and germs. It delivers fresh Camels and keeps them right until you smoke the last one.

CONFESSES DROWNING FARMER
TO TRY TO GET INHERITANCE
Michigan Farm Hand Says He Pushed Intoxicated Man Into Two Feet of Water.
By the Associated Press.
STANTON, Mich., June 29.—
Harold Rex, 26 years old, a farm hand, was held today on a charge of drowning Frank Sinkey, 62, farmer, who lived alone about eight miles southeast of here.
Rex, arrested at 9 o'clock last night, confessed, Sheriff Francis M.
Waldo said, that he drowned
Sinkey in two feet of water in Fish Creek after the farmer had become intoxicated.
The prisoner was quoted as saying he thought he would inherit Sinkey's property since the latter had no relatives. He could not explain, Waldo said, why he thought this.
The Sheriff said Rex went to Sinkey's house and that Sinkey drank a considerable quantity of whisky, while Rex kept sober. The younger man then got Sinkey to go with him into a swamp to "look for wild onions." He overpowered Sinkey, Rex was said to have confessed, tied his hands and threw him into the water.
A neighbor found the body later and Rex was arrested at a store
about a mile away.

TWO YOUTHS ADMIT KILLING OPERATOR OF GROCERY CHAIN
By the Associated Press.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 29.—
Police here have the statements of two youths that they committed the attempted robbery here May 27 in which Lafayette A. Jackson, operator of a chain of groceries,
was shot and killed.
Louis Hamilton, 25 years old, arrested at Iowa, Kan., last week and returned to Indianapolis Saturday, confessed yesterday, police said,
that he participated in the shooting. His statement followed that of Charles Vernon Witt, who was arrested here.
Hamilton's statement did not detail the shooting of Jackson, but he said he emptied his pistol and reloaded it while he was in the store.
Witt admitted carrying a sawed-off shotgun. Jackson was shot when he resisted the holdup men.

The roll on the left that looks like Granger Twist was formerly six one-dollar bills, and the mummified packet on the right is all that is left of three tens and a twenty.
It's a variation of the old story. Fear of banks—money hidden at home—this time in the oven—and then an expensive cake was baked. Now we are trying to save a loss for the owner by asking the Treasury Department at Washington to replace the money. They'll do it if they can identify the denominations.
In the meantime we are going to restrain all impulses
to point morals or make obvious quips about baking

DENVER CONVENTION
TO PASS ON PLAN
Minority Opposes Ceremony by Clergyman, but Would Permit Him to Bless Union.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 29.—Marriage of divorced persons in Episcopal churches with use of the Book of Common Prayer is favored in a revised proposal by a commission of the general convention of the church.
Last April the commission offered a plan to authorize Episcopal clergymen to remarry divorced persons, that plan prohibited the use of the church and the regular prayer book in the ceremony. The revised proposal, published today, would give clergymen the right to officiate.
The report will be submitted to the general convention of the church in Denver next September.
Meanwhile, a final report will be drawn. The commission invites suggestions.
At present the church permits
the remarriage only of the innocent party to a divorce granted for unfaithfulness.
Bishop Explains Plan.
The Rev. Horatio Page,
Bishop of Michigan and chairman of the commission, in a statement, said the new remarriage plan was sponsored because marriage outside of the regular forms of the church "would really be allowing a sort of inferior or backdoor type of marriage, which is unworthy of the church."
"We feel that a clear distinction should be made between a civil marriage and the blessing of the church," he added.
In an amendment to the amendment, a minority bloc of the commission proposed that the marriage of a divorced person "may not be performed by a minister of this church, but if the parties are married by civil authority no impediment shall exist to their membership in the church, and a minister may, in his discretion, bless the union."
Third Plan Proposed.
Still a third plan was put forward by Origen S. Seymour. It met with the approval of several members of the commission. It provides that an ecclesiastical court shall decide whether the conduct of the divorced person seeking to remarry was in any way responsible for the divorce and whether the applicant reasonably could have done anything to avoid the separation.
If these questions are answered
in favor of the applicant, permission for the remarriage may be granted. The ceremony then may be solemnized by an Episcopal clergyman in an Episcopal church
and with the prayer book service.
Under all three plans, one year must elapse after the divorce before permission to remarry can be filed, and then an ecclesiastical court, appointed by the Bishop of the diocese, must investigate the characters and personalities of the parties to the previous and proposed marriages and determine whether the spiritual welfare of the parties thereto and of society will be served by the proposed marriage.
Rewording of Marriage Statement.
There is proposed a rewording
of the statement which must be signed by all persons before they can be married by an Episcopal clergyman. It now reads:
"We, desiring to receive the blessing of the church upon our marriage, do solemnly declare that we hold the ideal of Christian marriage to be a lifelong physical and spiritual union of husband and wife
for the procreation (if it may be) of children and their physical and spiritual nurture, and for the safeguarding and benefit of society."
"And we engage ourselves, so far as in us lies, to make every effort to realize the Christian ideal and to avail ourselves of means of grace thereto as taught and provided by the church."
There is also a rearrangement without material change of the grounds upon which all marriages are forbidden and on which they may be annulled in the eyes of the church if discovery of their existence is made after marriage.
Conflict in Church.
In a statement accompanying the report, Bishop Page told of the two schools of thought on divorce in the Episcopal Church.
One group, he said, thought any remarriage of divorced persons
contrary to the teaching of Christ,
and looked on the proposal as unchristian and immoral. The other group he described as believing that something should be done to enable clergymen to remarry those

NEW YORK, June 29.—Payment of fees to clergymen by the motion picture industry was criticized today in a report by the Department of Research and Education of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.Specifically mentioning the motion picture producers' motion picture producers' motion picture producers, of which Will H. Hays is president, the report said:
"The payment of an honorarium to an administrative official of a religious organization by a trade association at a time when policies are being formulated in which that association has an obvious interest invites a damaging interpretation
when the facts are disclosed."The report said that the treasurer of the producers had made statements that he paid expenses and fees to many members of religious and social organizations; in the case of 52 persons, expenses incurred in conferences or addresses were paid by the Hays organization."Some very liberal payments of expense accounts have been made,"
the report said, "and the time and strength of the Hays organization seems to have been given to cultivating persons of influence, gaining the favor of organizations and organization committees, and seeking to clear the road for legislation to the obstacles to its program."The report charges that many of the 759 persons connected with religious or social organizations had financial relationships with the Hays group in 1928, 1929 and 1930.Hays, in a letter to Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council, defended his organization.He wrote: "I know of no great force that education in raising

Informed Total Acreage Will Be 106,253,000.By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 29.—The Agriculture Department has received reports from its European representatives that Russian fall sowing is to be 6.4 per cent greater than last year, with the total area of 106,253,000 acres. A large increase is planned for winter wheat, while winter rye acreage
may be slightly reduced.The department quoted a Russian paper as authority for these detailed winter acreages: Wheat, 37,065,000; rye, 67,841,000; barley,
1,100,000, and oats, 247,000.The department quoted from a speech made by the chairman of the Russian Grain Trust, which manages the state grain farms, that 10,478,000 acres will be harvested
this year against 1,150,000 a year ago. The grain to be delivered will total 2,900,000 short tons as compared with 642,000 in 1930. Six thousand combines will be used.
The 14,000 operators will be given a two-months' training period. The machines must average 18 hours a day.

FOREIGN BANKERS TO AID CHILE

U. S. and British Experts to Advise on Financial Problem.By the Associated Press.
SANTIAGO, Chile, June 29.—Negotiations are nearing completion,
the Government announces, for a visit to Chile by a group of American and British banking experts to investigate the country's financial situation with particular attention to Government obligations.With their assistance it is hoped a way may be found to provide for service charges and amortization
for the rest of the year on Chile's national debt. The country's financial situation is so dire that the Government is seeking a moratorium or to take any other more severe measures. A suggestion is understood to have been made that a fund sufficient to meet the Government's obligations
be set aside but retained temporarily in the country to prevent a drop in exchange which might result from a shipment of too much gold out of Chile.Hays said that in regard to the picture "King of Kings," he refused to accede to the demand of the Rev. George Reid Andrews, chairman of the Church and Drama Association. Hays said Andrews demanded that 10 per cent gross of the picture be paid to the association's treasury, only as long as Andrews remained chairman.
Andrews, in Bridgeport, Conn., said Hays was not telling the whole story, adding: "Hays double-crossed us, got all my ideas and completely commercialized the project."Carl E. Milliken, executive secretary of the Hays' organization, resigned from the Federal Council of Churches last week as the report was being finished.Preacher Says Hays Spent Money to Prevent Attacks on Movies.By the Associated Press.
BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 29.—
The Bridgeport Telegram in a copyrighted interview with the Rev.
George Reid Andrews, today quoted the minister as charging Will Hays with spending money widely
to prevent attacks on the motion picture industry by the Federal Council of Churches.Andrews formerly was chairman of the church and drama association of the council. In his interview he charged Hays with undertaking to "buy me by generous offers of secret money, and intending through me to control the organizations with which I was connected, and manipulated them to his own advantage in his efforts to prevent effective criticism of the movies." He further expressed indignation that his colleagues in the association had "succumbed to the lure of movie money," and declared he was forced to resign through "political pressure."Hays, the Rev. Mr. Andrews said, once contemplated a religious picture that would have been distasteful to the entire Christian world, injecting a love interest, but was prevented by the minister's efforts.WORLD MEETING ON INDUSTRIAL

NAVY AIR PROGRAM COMPLETED

Year Ahead of Schedule at Saving

WASHINGTON, June 29.—A year ahead of schedule and with savings estimated at $23,000,000,
the navy's five-year aircraft program has been completed. The achievement is described by Rear Admiral Moffett, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, as "completely satisfactory."By the end of the fiscal year tomorrow, the Navy was to have had 1000 modern airplanes on hand or on order. Actually, the goal was achieved Thursday with delivery of the one thousandth plane. "This does not mean, of course," Admiral Moffett said, "that the Navy has 1000 airplanes that it can put into the air at once for military use;
rather, there are about two-thirds of the number for operation, with the remainder, composed of all types, including training, as reserves." The program, when authorized, was expected to cost more than $55,000,000, but the actual outlay has been approximately $32,000,000.

opening and operation of the $30-

Union Electric Light and Power

the filling of the lake, now lacking
six or eight feet of water of being filled.When this electrical force ap-proximating 129,000 kilowatts, or about a fifth of the total capacity of the Union Electric, is to be released is dependent upon rainfall.
Officials were unwilling to guess
as to when the lake level will be sufficiently high to start the nine generators. They expressed the opinion, however, that by Aug. 1,
or before, electricity will be generated and distributed from Bag-

given the flooded area above the dam, constitutes an acreage of 61

today lost a suit for $198,000
against Rear Admiral William A.

of aeronautics, for alleged infringement of patent on a torpedo dropping device.The District of Columbia Court of Appeals reversed the judgment of the District of Columbia Su-

Fiske that amount. The retired out his authority. The Appeals court held that Fiske's patent was inoperative and that the government was entitled to an irrevocable license to use the inventions made

DEFINITE SCALES
FOR CUT IN ARMSHopes That When Next Conference Is Adjourned, Obligations Undertaken
Will Be Fulfilled.

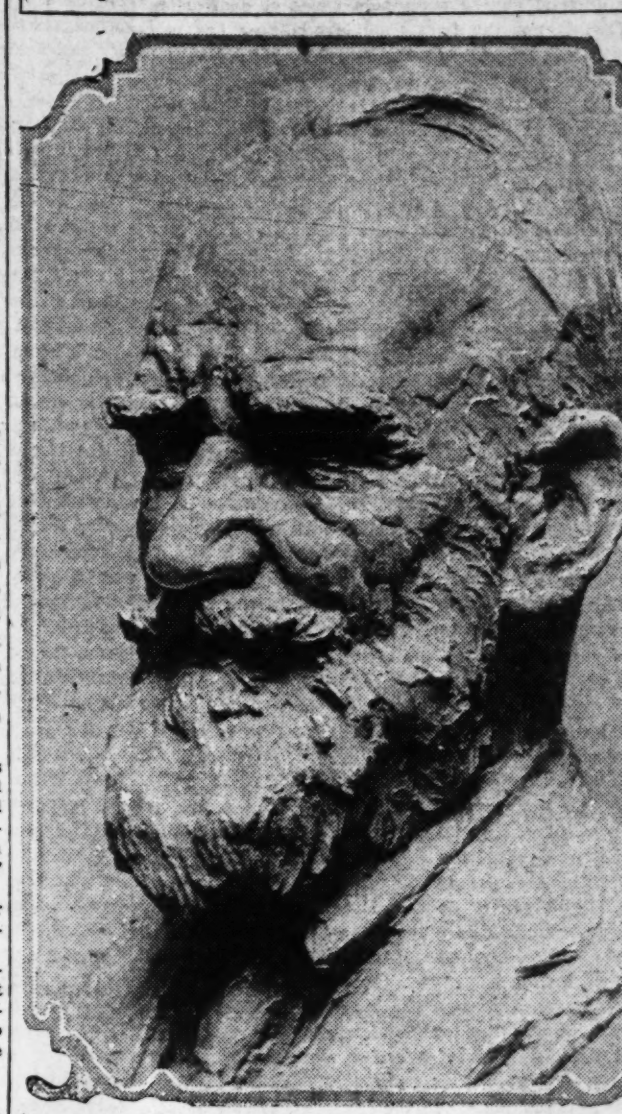

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 29.—Reviewing the world disarmament movement
before the House of Commons today, Prime Minister MacDonald said he hoped when the disarmament conference, which meets next February is adjourned, "we shall have not merely pieties but scales, not merely principles but standards, something each nation
can examine and see that obligations undertaken by other nations are actually fulfilled."The Prime Minister listed events of recent years that have had pacifying influences and remarked that the announcement of the impending meeting of the French and German Ministers "makes ones' heart glad.""It was what those striving for peace had been praying for," Mac-Donald continued."Later on the initiative of President Hoover will have its effect and will show that the world today is not the abandoned place so many superficial cynics always are claiming it to be."

For Further Reduction.

The Prime Minister declared the touch of sympathy was bound to keep France and Great Britain together "so long as we in this country have imagination to see what French men and women feel when war is talked about and disarmament is being negotiated."He hoped the result of the disarmament conference would be still further reduction in British armaments and the laying of the only foundations on which peace could rest—complete agreement and most friendly relations between all the nations of the world.Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, replied to MacDonald, saying the Prime Minister had shown the good faith with which Great Britain had done her best under successive governments to go on with progressive disarmament."We have taken great risks in what we may have done and have gone as far as we can in unilateral disarmament," Baldwin said."France to the Scapegoat."
"There is a tendency to make France the scapegoat for every trouble that arises in Europe."The Conservative leader remarked that "while there is much to criticize today and for many years past, the French people are
and have been as peace-loving as exists in any nation.""Let us never forget that thrice
in 120 years the manhood of France has been bled white in a fashion which has burned into the soul of France.""Let us offer France all sympathy
she needs and deserves, and let us do all possible to bring her along with us and to convince her that, as difficult as is the task to which we all are pledged, there may be difficulties and dangers to every other Power which are greater still."All But British Increase.

son of arms expenditures which showed Great Britain to be the

VERA CRUZ, Mex., June 29.—
Charging that Catholic priests in Mexico are representatives of "a foreign power" and are a burden on the public, Gov. Adalberto Tejeda today asked the District Court to uphold the new State law placing restrictions on the church.In a counter-petition to an action brought by priests for an injunction against application of the law, which limits the number of priests allowed to officiate in the State to 11, the Governor declared that because of "arrangements" between the Italian Government and the Vatican the priests were in fact representatives of a foreign power.He described them as "parasites who spend the people's money uselessly in building churches," declaring that the money could be put to better purpose in providing schools, and charged that the church sends $15,000,000 annually

ent injunction against application of the law to the priest in charge of the Cathedral at Jalapa, the State Capital, and several other actions for injunction are pending
before Judge Manuel Barlett.The Court held that the priest was harming no one by remaining in his church and was entitled to conduct service inasmuch as it was

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Where Is Our Moses?

YOUR editorial, "A Flexible Public Works Program," was unanswerable in proving that the American leaders of today in every walk of life are milling around in a senseless circle clutching at each other's throats. And why?

The average citizen would undoubtedly suggest that we need a great leader. We are crying to be led out of the wilderness! But to whom, including our respected President, and, in contrast, one of our foremost citizens, Dr. Butler, can we turn? Where is he and why is he not there?

It occurred to me that this universal confusion, conflict of thought, cause and effect and remedy might be attributable to a useless and senseless effort to thwart the law of supply and demand, an effort that had its birth with civilization itself.

It is a fundamental law of human nature to seek and expound a panacea for our ills—a "faith cure," such as President Hoover advocates as his latest "noble experiment" to help his suffering fellow Americans.

It may well be that the next election will be decided from a debate of the American voters as to whether or not the great Republican party can beat the law of supply and demand, which will naturally include the wet and dry issue naturally "non-political question," forsooth!

Well, we shall see. Like Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln, and unlike Alexander Hamilton, I have great faith in the good sense, fairness and honesty of the people—common sense and common honesty to the preservation of the individual's right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," as the Declaration of Independence puts it.

CAMPBELL CUMMINGS.

The P. S. C.'s Campaign.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE street car company's campaign against the "ambulance chaser," or shyster lawyer who promotes fictitious accident cases, sounds fine, but isn't the car company really trying to establish itself on the same plane as a government that is not liable to any kind of suit? Every person and corporation is fully liable for carelessness and neglect of safety. If the car company is truly sincere in seeking to reduce accidents and attendant claims, why doesn't it install motormen and conductors who care? The hazard of the street cars is a far more ghastly thing than the relatively few false injury claims paid by an organization that gets 10-cent fares for standing room rides.

Fool to Live on the Farm.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I THINK the farmer is the only person who really lives. The city slicker, who thinks he is so wise, is merely existing. He works in an unnatural place under unnatural light at a grinding pace, while the farmer works with nature under natural light with natural surroundings at a natural pace. The farmer has a home, while the denizen of the city has a cell. When the city chump wants to play, he goes to a picture show and watches someone else do things. He goes to a ball game and watches someone else play, or goes to a prize fight, and sees someone else fight. He is merely a spectator. He watches someone else live. The farmer does all these things instead of watching someone else do them. He lives instead of watching the other fellow live. The urbanite things instead of watching someone else. He has only an imitation. Art is only an imitation of nature. Music is an imitation of nature. The farmer has nature itself, and who wants an imitation when he can have the real thing?

Forest Park Speed Law.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THERE is an ancient law still in force limiting the speed of vehicles in Forest Park to eight miles an hour. There is no sign or warning posted in the park as to this speed limitation and the matter is ignored by all automobilists except those who have been arrested for violating this law. The law is unfair because it puts entirely in the discretion of the police whether or not they may arrest you if you drive through the park, as everyone exceeds a speed limit of eight miles. This law should be repealed.

Milk Prices.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

CHEESE, butter and all other dairy products have been reduced as much as 25 per cent. This reduction is, of course, in line with the reduction of all other commodities. However, milk has been reduced but 1 cent a quart during this period.

Is this due to the fact that most of the smaller dealers have been frozen out through the enactment of laws making it impossible for them to continue in business, thereby leaving control of the local situation in the hands of the "big fellows"? The dairy farmers are certainly receiving much less for milk than they formerly did from the big dairies.

THE CAPITAL GAINS TAX.

In his recent Indianapolis speech the President spoke of the capital gains tax. He said: "It is obvious that our taxes upon capital gains viciously promote the booms and just as viciously intensify depressions. In order to avoid taxes, real estate and stocks are withheld from the market in times of rising prices, and for the same reason large quantities are dumped on the market in times of depression."

This is not the first time Mr. Hoover has mentioned this subject. In his speech to the bankers in Cleveland last October he cautiously said that "an inquiry might develop that our system of taxes upon capital gains directly encourages inflation," and in his message to Congress in December he expressed his belief that its effect was to "enhance speculative inflation and likewise impede business recovery."

The question is of sufficient importance to warrant some consideration. The income tax law of 1913 provided that any profit from the sale of land, securities or other capital assets at more than the original purchase price was to be considered income and taxed accordingly. Subsequent legislation provided that any loss incurred in such transactions was an allowable deduction from income. With many changes in detail, these provisions have been retained in later revenue acts. In this respect we departed from the practice of England and most other countries which have an income tax. In England no income tax is paid on the profit from the sale of a security, nor is any deduction from income allowed for a loss incurred in such a transaction.

Three considerations are involved in the proposal to abolish the capital gains tax: the effect on the Government finances, the effect on the taxpayer and the effect on the business situation. From 1925 to 1928 this tax accounted for more than 15 per cent of the income tax paid by individuals, bringing in over $500,000,000. On the other hand, it seems likely that in the past two years and the current year the allowances for capital losses will mean a material reduction in income tax receipts. In a country which is on the verge of the capital gains tax should, averaging the good years with the bad, be a revenue producer, although its abolition would not result in any such loss as an inspection of the tax returns between 1925 and 1928 might indicate. Several years ago Secretary Mellon suggested the abolition of the tax on the ground that in the long run it resulted in a loss of revenue to the Government, as the taxpayer had the initiative in determining when to cash his profits or take his losses.

As regards justice to the taxpayer, it would seem that profits from operations in securities and real estate should pay a tax equal to that paid on ordinary income. On the basis of ability to pay, the recipients should rightfully make a generous contribution to the costs of government. Some change in the tax may be desirable, however. The suggestion made by the National Tax Association and some other organizations, that the rate be lowered on gains from the sale of property held more than a certain period of years, has much to commend it. One danger which must be guarded against in any proposal to amend or abolish the tax is that of evasion of taxation through masking income as capital gains. The warning of the National Tax Association on this point is worth heeding: "Until our income tax system is more highly developed, the possibilities of evading taxation by masquerading current income in the guise of capital gains will be too numerous to warrant a complete abolition of the tax on capital gains."

The idea expressed by Mr. Hoover that this tax is a stimulator of speculation and a fosterer of depression is perhaps not so "obvious" as he would have us believe. That some persons hesitated to cash in on their paper profits on account of the tax situation, or have taken their losses in order to lighten a tax burden, is undoubtedly true. But the huge taxes paid on capital gains between 1925 and 1928 give little support to the idea that owners of securities and real estate were engaged in a concerted refusal to sell and take their profits. A few years ago, when the administration doctrine was that prosperity was the Republican party's gift to America, one did not find such fears expressed in official circles. To advance this explanation of the depression, and at the same time to defend in lyric strains the Hawley-Smoot tariff, is certainly to strain at a gnat and swallow a camel.

A GROUND HERO OF THE AIR.

Sergt. James Tate of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service, Missouri National Guard, has not flown any oceans or charted any world cruises to bring him undying and spectacular fame. Sergt. Tate is not a daring pilot—he is just a pretty good mechanic and a bang-up parachute packer.

The other day when Jimmy Doolittle made his miraculous 300-foot leap to safety as his racing plane tumbled, his parachute saved him. The chute had to work perfectly, and it did. Sergt. Tate packed it.

Now it is disclosed eight other parachutes packed by Tate have met the emergencies marking induction into the Caterpillar Club. Col. Lindbergh passed the "test" and did his "post-graduate" work with "chutes packed by Tate." "Casey" Lambert and Capt. Fred Nelson were other flyers whom he helped to save without leaving the ground. A pretty good man for flyers to know, is Sergt. Tate.

Work is the cure for the depression, according to ex-Mayor Kiel, and the 6,000,000 or more out of employment will cordially agree with him.

THE WRONG TRACK.

For three weeks revelations of the wild exploits of a New York girl ending in her mysterious death were conspicuous on the front page. And now that the mystery seems to be solved, in the testimony of her own handwriting, as a suicide, there lingers interest in the young woman and the kind of being she was.

Starr Faithfull, whose allegorical name occurred accidentally through the remarriage of her mother, once had more to recommend her to the world than most girls hope for—beauty, brains, a poetic sense, love of adventure, fearlessness. Her last letters reveal, too, a capacity for devotion so potent that "the words love, adore, worship have become meaningless." Nor was she wanting altogether in a sense of social responsibility. She expressed a desire to die before she dragged others down with her. She was determined on self-destruction even though she contemplated it with an anguish known only to sensitive souls.

A natural girl, except that she spurned the tears

commonly cultivated in the young women of a monogamous society. And having run the gamut of the senses, she thought life offered no more and was bored.

The modern scientific student of behavior would probably say that her capacities, guided methodically and early into constructive channels, would have produced a person no less bold and aggressive, but enriched with intellectual interests which would propagate themselves in an unending chain of activity and achievement.

PROGRESS AT PARIS.

Prospects are bright that the proposed moratorium on war debts and reparations will become effective on July 1, the date hopefully designated by Mr. Hoover. The French reservation, which at first slightly chilled public confidence, appears to be a precautionary measure, rather than an insuperable objection. Political realists as they are, the French are looking ahead to the end of the moratorium. In the welter of comment on the proposal, someone remarked that Mr. Hoover had "torpedoed the Young plan." The French are determined to salvage the Young plan, so to speak, before it is wrecked. That is the purpose of their reservation.

Under the Young plan, the non-deferable payments which Germany must make to France amount yearly to $100,000,000. France insists that these payments be made, but engages to deposit the money at once in the Bank for International Settlements to be used by Germany, though she suggests that some of the fund be available for other needy countries, notably Austria. By such arrangement, the non-postponable provision of the Young plan would ostensibly continue to function during the moratorium, though actually it would be suspended, and Germany would as a matter of fact enjoy the relief designed. The advantage to France would be that, at the end of the moratorium no question could arise as to reinstating the non-postponable provision, since it had never been suspended.

Germany seemingly accepts the French position as not unreasonable. Such inference at least is warranted from the unofficial expressions of German officials. That unofficial attitude, it may be hoped, will be formally and officially recorded today or tomorrow by Chancellor Brüning and Foreign Minister Curtius, who have been invited to Paris by Premier Laval. This invitation, it may be assumed, is the result of the continuous conferences among the French Ministers and Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Edge. These discussions have been conducted in an atmosphere of fine determination to reach the desired conclusion. At any rate, there has been no hint in the news from Paris of an impasse in the deliberations, or of any obstructive influence.

Indeed, the Hoover moratorium, from its announcement to its now imminent acceptance and adoption, is an inspiring demonstration of the power of good will in that difficult arena of international negotiation. It is true, of course, that the need for magnanimous action was imperative, but history is permanently scarred with crises where the need for such action was imperative, but the statesmanship to meet it was wanting. Mr. Hoover has brought good will out of its elegant and esteemed inertia and put it to work. In so doing he has thrust himself into the select circle of history makers.

MR. WHITEHEAD.

The death of Wilbur C. Whitehead removes a bridge expert who, with Culbertson and Work, constituted, perhaps, the triumvirate of accepted authority. He wrote voluminously on the endless possibilities of the game and as lecturer established an agreeable personal relationship throughout the country with his own pupils and with enthusiasts of every school. Mr. Culbertson generously acclaims him "the outstanding figure in the bridge world," an estimate which seems justified by the fact that he compiled the table of quick trick values which has not only simplified the problem of bidding in contract but has given it something of scientific precision. The rating of bridge in the scheme of things runs the scale from a recreational asset to an inescapable agony, but its popularity cannot be doubted. And for years, wherever the cards have been shuffled, the name of Whitehead has been quoted with finality by his students. That is the stuff that fame is made of.

The wets are determined to elect an all-wet delegation to Congress from Missouri next year and the dries an all-dry. Perhaps the people who realize that there are many important questions besides prohibition will try to elect a congressional delegation capable of dealing with those questions.

MONEY AND MATCHES.

A monopolistic enterprise dwarfing in its scope even that of our gigantic steel, aluminum or automobile industries is the Swedish match industry, which now controls more than three-fourths of the world production. The technique of its owners, the firm of Toll & Kreuger, of which Ivar Kreuger is the dominant figure, is to lend money to sorely pressed governments in return for the exclusive privilege of selling matches.

Post-war Germany succumbed with a 50-year grant in return for a $125,000,000 loan and France, which once kept the match monopoly for itself, disposed of it to the Swedish Croesus when it needed funds for stabilization of the franc. Altogether, the Kreuger interests own complete monopolies in nine countries, partial ones in two and practical control in four, including the United States and Great Britain. Soviet Russia, unique in this as in other economic matters, is the only country Kreuger has not penetrated.

Perhaps our industrialists could learn something from this silent Swede, whose name is hardly known outside his own country. For instance, the great South American market, the natural field for the extension of American trade, is being stolen from under our noses. Kreuger holds match franchises in Bolivia, Ecuador, Peru and Guatemala. Peru has even passed a law against the use of patent lighters. Brazil is flirting with the idea of granting a monopoly for a loan, and so is Colombia.

The International Match Trust, dominating governments by the power of its wealth, may be a forerunner of other international cartels upon which the peoples of the world will eventually have to depend for the necessities of life. And perhaps they will not be so unobtrusive and so apparently harmless as Emperor Kreuger's.

Mahatma Gandhi is a rabid prohibitionist, but just the same we believe that the mint julep, to mention one example, has got it all over goat's milk.

THE DOUGHNUT IS GAINING ON THE HOLE.

Prices and the Gold Complex

Effects of gold standard have caused much alarm among certain economists, who see danger in France's huge accumulation, in liabilities of our banks and in war debts; writer says no relation can be found between price fluctuations and supply of metal; expansion of exchange mediums lessens its relation to credit and currency.

Joseph Stagg Lawrence in the American Bankers' Association Journal
(Reprinted from Fleet's.)

IN THE far-flung category of economic subjects none has been viewed with alarm so persistently, continuously and exhaustively as the gold standard. It is the most prolific matrix of apprehension in the field of business and economic literature. This is due partly to a proper appreciation of its importance in the commerce and life of civilized nations. It is due also to a baroque exaggeration of the significance of those changing portents which fleetingly crowd upon the stage of current events and then depart without leaving lasting monuments or enduring scars of their brief presence. While they hold the spotlight, agitation animates the breasts of our dark prophets.

Throughout the latter part of 1928 and the greater part of 1929, it was made to appear that stock market speculation was about to wreck the precious standard from the feeble grasp of civilized nations. One scholar has gone so far as to say that if the United States indulged in any more speculative spree it might be well for the rest of the world to seek some other standard than gold for its currency.

Again there has been in evidence a vague current of unrest due to the gold accumulations of the Bank of France. In fact, John Maynard Keynes proved that if France were to demand payment of her current credits in England in terms of gold, she could drive that country completely off the gold standard. This spectral hypothesis caused grave concern.

In this world of ours there are vast, far-reaching and involved credit relations which do not permit such summary liquidation as Mr. Keynes postulated. We may take first of all the deposit liabilities of our banks. They are paying in dollars which the law defines as 23.22 grains of pure gold. The liabilities of our banks payable on demand or short notice exceed $50,000,000,000. If we, the depositors, should all demand payment at the same time in the coin which the law defines, the banks could not meet one-third of their obligations though they summoned all the monetary gold which the world possesses. Here is a situation as probable and as fearful as that which the English economist sprang upon a startled world.

The rest of the world owes the United States approximately $25,000,000,000. Not all of this debt can be liquidated upon immediate or short notice. If, however, we should choose to exercise our option with respect to that portion which can be so liquidated, either directly or by conversion, we could gather into our vaults the world's supply of gold.

Here, then, we have quite a staggering assortment of dangers. One and all these are groundless fears and idle premises. Not that they are impossible. But they are too improbable to merit serious consideration. That gold is in any way responsible for the present distress of the world can be accepted as a tenable proposition only if we accept certain rigid premises regarding the rate of necessary growth in our gold supply and the fixed relation between that gold supply and price levels. No one has yet as-established any causal connection that is worth the paper on which it is printed between the rate of past growth of gold and the conduct of the price level. After prodigious statistical efforts, we can only say that the world's gold supply has revealed one rate of growth, the sum total of credit and currency another rate and that the price level has rambled up and down through a wide range. Only a clouded assumption can hold that the last is the inevitable consequence of the first.

Gold no longer has a direct bearing upon prices because it no longer serves as the sole direct medium of exchange. It has been so diluted by substitutes and its relation to credit and currency has been so loosened that it is impossible to establish a direct or in fact any active causal connection between it and the price level. Let the skeptic try to trace a correlation between the world's gold supply and the world price level—if there is such a thing. When he learns how to measure the purchasing power in any given country, let him try to show that increases in the gold supply are followed by increases in the price level and vice versa.

Gold serves but two purposes today outside of its uses in industry and the arts. These two purposes are only indirectly and remotely related to the price level. Gold is employed to settle temporary balances between countries which cannot conveniently be deferred by credit. That is a sufficient general explanation for gold movements today.

In its second function, gold serves as a watchdog against inflation, although when its bluff is called it retreats meekly enough. A country is on a gold standard only so long as an equality in value is maintained between a given quantity of gold defined by the law—23.22 grains in this country—and the monetary unit. This equality must be maintained by constant and unconditional convertibility so that the option may be exercised at any time and to any extent by anyone who holds any of the country's currency. The necessity for such convertibility will prevent legislators, reluctant to tax their constituents, from using an undue amount of paper money to pay the bills of state. In this capacity gold is a check to imprudent government finance.

The truth of the matter is that we do not know how little gold we require for these two purposes. Long before a crisis is reached, the central bank or the treasury raises the white flag. Restrictions are placed upon exportation. Convertibility is denied and we are no longer on the gold standard. Since popular psychology and governmental fiat are so important, if not more so than the reserve ratio, more gold would help us little. By the same token, less gold would embarrass us equally little.

However, there is little chance at the present time that any of the governments of countries on the gold standard will deliberately abandon it. Our interest in it here is due to an examination of the part it is playing in the distressing subsidence of prices. Such a relation cannot be discovered.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, June 29.

WHEN a high-strung patrician Democrat rises in the Senate to exhort "those contumacious gentlemen" across the aisle, he never lacks an attentive audience. It is Carter Glass of Virginia, whose absence from Congress would lessen deplorably the color and verve of that body. His fierce but sincere partisanship is refreshing in an age of political indetermination and indirection. Compromise he knows not. His violent reactions to the true signs of Democratic leaders at the opening of the last session marked the beginning of the end of his party's "co-operation" program. When the Senator draws himself up to his hansom height and hurls his thunder about someone is sure to be struck in the process.

Never in his anger does he forget to employ the most meticulous language and words of the longest dimensions. He reveals in such verbal specimen as "animadversion" and "maladministration." His most fearful piece of profanity is "Dad burn it," which, uttered in his high, intense tones, takes on the force of a pirate oath.

WITH a single sentence, the Virginian can squelch the most pretentious, long-winded speaker. When Tom Heflin, speaking as the mouthpiece of John Skelton Williams, uttered practically the same attack on the Federal Reserve Board for several consecutive days and then accused Mr. Glass of not listening to him, the latter retorted "I've heard that speech too many times since John Skelton Williams made it to you."

Off-repeated stories about the allegedly great also exasperate him. In a speech during the 1928 presidential campaign, he said with a fine sneer, "Of course, he (Hoover) fed the starving Belgians. What else would he do with all the food Woodrow Wilson sent over—eat it?"

It annoys him to be told that he has a Southern drawl, though the fact is that his residence below the Mason and Dixon Line is revealed in the first few sentences he utters. He has an inflexible way of cocking his head and speaking out of the corner of his mouth which he twists high to one side.

THE Virginian, of course, is not always in a state of high emotion. He is a hard worker, an omnivorous reader, and his record bespeaks his brilliance of intellect. He has a strong sense of humor also, which often expresses itself in anecdotes at his own expense.

Glass owns two papers in Lynchburg, his home city, which he occasionally uses as a sounding board for his trenchant opinions. His greatest interest outside of Congress is in Jersey cows, of which there are numerous fine varieties on the Glass farm in Virginia. A major hobby of his is attempting to prove whether Bacon wrote Shakespeare or not. So deeply has he gone into this ancient controversy that it is almost a personal matter to him.

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Glamorous Biography

THE CALIPH OF BAGDAD: O. HENRY. By Robt. H. Davis and Arthur B. Maurice. (D. Appleton & Co., New York City. $3.50.)

THERE are excellent reasons for suspecting that any literary wizard with a flair for prophecy might do worse than read more than here in the Pulitzer Prize winner in the field of biography for the year 1931.

In support of the prognostication it could be pointed out that there seems to be nothing in the way of a decision as to whether or not the story told by those who were in intimate contact with the man, not only in the period of his rise to fame, but all along the way from his boyhood in North Carolina up through the Texas years, that ended in disgrace, the flight to Honduras and the aimless wandering thereafter, the return to a dying wife and a prison sentence. Thus, the tale is to be credited with authenticity in a high degree, and any future biographer of the man will of necessity be greatly indebted to Davis and Maurice. In the third place, O. Henry celebrated the life of Gotham, and is the rightful and accepted laureate of that narcissistic metropolis; a fact which may conceivably have had as much to do with the great short-story writer's rapid elevation to a reputed place among immortals as the unique quality of his genius. As for the matter of authorship, Bob Davis would appear to be peculiarly invulnerable to the slings and arrows of clique warfare, being as widely beloved, and justly so, as he is gifted. If "The Caliph of Bagdad" were chosen for the prize, it is hard to see how anyone could be offended, save, perhaps, the other biographers of the year.

And what a moving, human, vivid book it is! Both Davis and Maurice were pals of O. Henry, the former becoming acquainted with his subject as far back as a reporter for "The World," he was co-"dig" the erstwhile his hiding place among the monuments for him to Sunday World's most famous salary of $50 per week.

As editor of the "Pictorial," Davis bought Henry's most famous 1904 onward, and letters that passed two are now public time. The whole anecdote, and dull moment of the "dig" of regard, it is a contribution to our one that should be

IS LARGES PRICE RISE

Volume of Business on Exchange Is Light but Traders Are Inclined to Take Profits After Recent Big Advance.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 29.—The stock market had its most substantial setback today since the start of the upswing, prompted by the war debt payment postponement plan.

Trading was in light volume, but traders were inclined to take profits on the theory that the recent advance may have been a little too rapid.

With the Franco-American debt negotiations admittedly at a "difficult" point, the market was inclined to hesitate, pending news from London. The foreign markets were better sustained than New York stocks, however, and had intervals of strength.

Losses of 2 to 5 points. There were numerous losses of 2 to 5 points at the finish, with Atchafalaya and Auburn down. The decline embraced a wide list of issues, in which steel, copper, utilities, chemicals and rails were prominent. Transfers for the day, however, were only about 2,000,000 shares. A rally in the afternoon was short lived, and final prices were near the day's work.

Issues of 2 to 5 included U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Kennecott, American Smelting, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Sears, Roebuck, Eastman, American and Gillette Power and Allied Chemical.

Copper Prices Advanced. The reaction in the copper issues was in the face of a further increase of 1/4 of a cent a pound, bringing the price up to 9 cents, a gain of a full cent in the past week. Even at 9 cents, however, few copper companies can show satisfactory profits.

While Wall Street awaited developments from Paris, bankers continued to further pressure against the German mark, suggesting the need for speedier action. The Reichsbank has experienced a further sear of reserves, both last Saturday and today. The $100,000,000 co-operative credit, however, was expected to take care of the July credit requirement.

Money Market Situation. Despite the sharp reductions of dividends by American companies, Wall Street estimates the midyear interest and dividend payments, a gain of which will be met this week, at between $500,000,000 and $600,000,000. The money market, nevertheless, showed no important signs of stiffening. Call money was available at concessions from the official rate of 1 1/2 per cent.

The German exchanges were mixed, but ruled unchanged at 23.73 cents for cables. Sterling, however, was easier, ruling at 48.66, off 1/4, for cables. The Canadian dollar recovered further and Latin American were steady to firm.

PRICE OF COPPER IS ADVANCED 1-4C A POUND

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 29.—The price of copper was advanced a quarter of a cent a pound today for the fourth time in a week. The rise made the domestic price 9 cents a pound, delivered, and the export quotation 9.275 cents, c. i. f. European base ports. Foreign sales of the metal this morning amounted to 10,000 tons.

Export demand for copper has continued to be heavy volume, following President Hoover's announcement of sales for foreign currencies on a few occasions have been made. An advance of a quarter of a cent a pound, the price of bare copper was 9.25 cents, c. i. f. Europe, and 9.20 cents, c. i. f. London, today by General Cable Corporation.

Dry Goods Market Review. NEW YORK, June 29.—Dry goods were in better demand Monday. Sales for the week were 100,000 yards, compared with 90,000 yards for the week ending June 26. An advance of a quarter of a cent a pound, the price of bare copper was 9.25 cents, c. i. f. Europe, and 9.20 cents, c. i. f. London, today by General Cable Corporation.

ARDMORE ACQUITTAL STIRS MEXICAN PRESS

Excelsior Thinks Perhaps Jury Was Influenced by Racial Prejudice.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, June 29.—Mexican newspaper editorials strongly criticize the acquittal at Ardmore, Ok., Saturday, of Deputy Sheriff W. E. Guess, charged with shooting and killing Emilio Cortes Rubio, nephew of President Ortiz Rubio, on June 8.

Under the title, "The Shame of Ardmore," Excelsior calls the shooting an "infamous and cowardly act" and blames a "partial or ignorant jury, perhaps influenced by racial prejudice," for the verdict. "It would be unjust," Excelsior says, "to blame a whole people for the error or partiality of one of their courts, hence our comment is directed against the nameless justice (?) of Ardmore and against certain notorious vices of the lower class American police who in some states are guided by a savage spirit of ill-will."

Innumerable abuses have been committed in Mexico, the paper admits, "but we cannot recall a case of Mexican police assassinating honorable youths of a foreign country here in the double character of distinguished guests and students of outstanding good conduct. Nor, which is still more scandalous, that the assassin was acquitted, throwing an infamous suspicion upon the innocent victims."

"That, which will bring protests from decent men in the United States and Mexico, was left for a deputy sheriff of Oklahoma and a partial or ignorant jury at Ardmore to do."

El Nacional quotes Aaron Saenz, Secretary of Industry, thus: "All comment should take the form of energetic protest. It is sad that in a country of presumed justice a thing like this should happen and should go unpunished."

Cristoforo Ibanez, secretary to the President of Mexico, declared the acquittal at Ardmore would not encourage other Mexican students to enter the United States. "If two American students had been assassinated in Mexico," he said, "we would have proceeded with full justice against the assassins."

Manuel Riva Palacio, a national deputy, said: "Reciprocity is indicated."

PAJAMAS ARE IN STYLE AT RIVER BEACHES

WAITING FOR THE FERRY TO LINCOLN BEACH

If you ask Opinion
Martha Carr

DEAR MRS. CARR: I should like to say a few words to the young man who signs himself "Disgusted Harry." Some of what I have to say, I hope he will take as friendly advice.

I am afraid that Harry is like the great majority of men—he wants a girl who won't talk about herself at all—but who will listen to him, or talk about his own experience. It is an open secret among girls that men prefer to be listened to—not talked to. That is one of the first lessons to be learned by the girl who wants men to think her "interesting." I know this to be so, for it has been my own experience. I used to be considered "intelligent." But I wasn't popular. Finally it dawned on me that all that was necessary was to make it plain to the male that one was in a receptive frame of mind for whatever great truths he cared to utter—and one's success was assured.

I will admit, in all fairness, that there are exceptions to this rule—it has been my privilege to know a very few.

But many a man who is very brilliant, like the some only average woman—because she has the divine gift of being able to listen.

TEACHER.

DEAR MARTHA: I am a business girl, 20, and considered attractive. When I was 19, while working for a large concern, I fell in love with a young man. At first, I tried to hold back this feeling and didn't want to let it get too strong a hold of me, but found it was impossible, although I hid my feelings from him. Later on, I learned he was in love with me also. My mother, although not quite sure this party is the one I care for but knows there is someone, says the love I think I have for him is only infatuation. Mrs. Carr, would you consider it infatuation if I tell you I do not care to go out on dates with anyone and only want to be in his company, which is during office hours and only occasionally, very, very seldom during an evening when it can be arranged without letting it be known. This person is married, and at this point of my letter, no doubt, you are thinking I am foolish to think of him as I do. He does not love me, but I love only me, and have proven it hundreds of times, not alone in what he has said but also in his actions. Now, here is my question: Couldn't we continue to care for each other as we do now, if we do not harm anyone else, if he does not know about it, but he would be more than willing to get a divorce, if the grounds were available, but she is a wonderful wife to him, and although I realize it isn't fair to her, I can't stop loving him, regardless of what anyone might like me to do or not do. He and I enjoy each other's company immensely and hope to continue to do so forever and ever. My mother suspects him as being the one I care for and is under the impression that he means "no good by our little Neil," but she is wrong.

NELL.

If in this impossible situation there were any question of harming the man's wife by your association with her husband (which there is not) certainly there is no question about the conditions being harmful to you, from the standpoint of honor, if nothing else. I believe the man himself, probably realizes this and is telling you as best he can, that he wishes to be out of it. Most mothers would not only "suspect" but would do something about the situation. The only thing for you to do is look for another job and have the back-bone and character to get this man out of your life. You will be sure to find a more legitimate and conscientious friend.

DEAR MRS. CARR: What is the best thing for me to do when I enter high school in September, for two or four years? I have signed up for four years. I am asking this because I have a chance after high school to take up "beauty culture." I am just 13 years old and figure on taking a business course in high school. Will I be too old at seventeen to start beauty culture? Mother prefers me to finish my high school.

DOT.

Take your four years in high school, by all means. Certainly you will be too old to start beauty culture after that. You will be better prepared for it.

DEAR MRS. CARR: What should a girl call her friends of the opposite sex, if not "boy friends"? That is common, isn't it?

I am 16 years old, five feet, five and one-half inches. How much should I weigh? What are the most becoming colors for me—my face is brown, my features ordinary, hair brown and wavy, eyes brown. How should I arrange my hair?

BROWN EYES.

Yes, the expression "boy friend" seems to be an epidemic. Why not just call them "friends"?

(2) If you long to be slim, you could still carry 125 pounds well. This year yellow is a very popular color and it is well-suited, usually, to your type. You can wear red if you are not too dark and cream or oyster white. Green

GIRLS at the Meramec beach resorts who last year couldn't think of being seen in anything other than one-piece bathing suits, who couldn't stand anything on their bare arms and legs and backs except a coat of tan, this year are swimming through the woods and bushes and climbing over the rocky hillsides in long floppy pajamas. Not one skirt like the old street sweepers of the '20s the modern girl has always laughed at, but two, wrap their limbs and entangle their ankles.

They'll tell you they are loose and sloppy and comfortable, these new garments, and a great protection against the gnats and sandflies and the sunburn which after all was not so popular as it was unavoidable, and that, anyway, everybody is wearing them. Which is always pretty for summer, but your complexion must be healthy in appearance. Brown and navy are both standbys. Your printed chiffon and blonde slippers are all right.

(4) The arrangement of your hair would depend upon the shape of your head. The short bob is not so much worn, but still looks attractive on the right head. The long bob with a few tendrils or curls is popular, but it must be kept in absolutely perfect condition. A little bun or roll at the back is still good.

DEAR MRS. CARR: Why is it that high school fellows never pay any attention to decent girls in their classes? It seems that the only girls they go with are the "clinging vine" type, those who smoke and pet. About the only thing a decent girl can do these days is stay at home and be lonesome. My friend and I are 17 and look well, have good clothes and good manners, but we are both shy and when we go to parties and boys come near us, we just about have heart failure and are miserable. We dance as well as most and play tennis and swim. We are lonesome.

ELLEN AND JEAN.

You have told me your own story. Why do you think you must be different creatures the minute the boys come around? Be natural and friendly when they appear. Suppose you came up to a pair of boys and they turned red and the face, struck dumb and perhaps, stuttered? Would you think them attractive?

It isn't very nice of a young girl to make the sweeping statement that girls who are popular are not decent. In fact, it is decidedly outlandish and unfair. Forget that and learn how to be sweet and sporting about other girls and women—no boy likes a "back-biter." Find out what interests the boys you know and talk about that.

DEAR MRS. CARR: We would appreciate your advice on games that could be played at a lawn party. The guests are from 16 to 19.

TWO PALS.

Lawn parties, with lighted lanterns, tables set with flowers and fruit punch, music from the radio or victrola in the house, seldom need games. I have suggested once or twice a tent or bower where a fortune teller (a real one imported for the occasion or one of the girls who can take funny fortunes) is ready to serve the guests.

Told could lay a tarpaulin over the grass, with weights on the edges to keep it smooth, and dance. But father may think it too hard on his precious grass. It would be a little while before the turf would look right, but it would come back. Pottery races and games of that kind are even more fun at a lawn party than else, where.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I am 13 years old, but I read your column every day. I find it very interesting; almost like a story.

Mrs. Carr, I have an older sister who persists in doing things and making games Mother and Dad don't like. She also goes with boys. Mother and Dad would not approve last is the truth, at least. Every other girl at the beaches Sunday was wearing at least a piece of a pajama.

There was grandmother, in kimono—like coveralls, mother in bifurcated bungalow apron effects of prints and gingham, sister in checked and striped or blue jeans overalls like the greener boy's and girl friends in the working kilt of sailors, fishermen, mechanics, Mexicans, xympies, apaches, gangsters, galsies, coolies and cowboys.

Lincoln Beach would scorn to be classed as a fashion center. Wear what you please has always been its watchword. Only somebody appearing in too formal attire is subjected to criticism and suspicion of being high hat.

But the pajama vogue, straight from Palm Beach, and the Riviera and other sources of what the stylists term high fashions, has met with instant acclaim by the thousands who frequent the Meramec on Sundays.

Maybe the regular customers will claim the new garment is just a variation of the white duck sailor or breeches they have been so fond of wearing on their hikes, picnics and around their clubhouses and dance halls. The difference being that the tight fitting ducks were not becoming to everybody. Only slim little flappers really looked good in them, whereas pajamas, everybody can wear them, the old, the young, the fat, the lean.

Anyway, almost every female person at the beaches yesterday was wearing some version of the new garment over her swimming suit. If only the coat without the trousers, or the trousers without the coat and those still appearing with limbs wholly exposed were studying the new styles.

There were girls in wide flapping blue trousers with berets perched far back on their heads, girls in awning stripes, and enormous plaids with turbans wrapped round their heads, girls in shantung in bizarre combinations of color and wide floppy hats, girls in Turkish toweling trousers, in crepe trousers and coolie coats; two girls dressed alike in white plique trousers printed with blue boats on green waves, blue jackets and berets, girls in modernistic prints with big hats made of matching material—these and many other versions of pajamas were at Lincoln Beach Sunday.

It was noticeable that men, too, were being influenced by this running to cover of bare legs and were wearing overalls or cotton trousers over their bathing suits. Doubtless the girls are laboring under the delusion that they are affecting something daring and dashing in denning the bifurcated garments of the braver sex. They forget that pajamas originated in the Orient, where seclusion and modesty are guiding principles among women. Maybe unwittingly we are being led back to an era of modesty in dress though it is hardly time to predict so radical and revolutionary a change as that.

The meat of a pecan nut rubbed into a bad scratch on highly polished furniture will successfully conceal the marks. Polish afterward with furniture polish.

Try to find pleasure in the success of others. Remember if you were in their place how much you would appreciate that kind of interest. For others to have what you have not, don't mean that taking it from them would give it to you.

If your vanity is about your looks (pride is a different thing), look in the glass, then look in the movie magazines and at your friends; you are sure to find lots of faces a whole lot prettier than yours, and yet you probably would not care to exchange your education, breeding and character for some of theirs.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I am "aunt" to several nephews and nieces, all grown and married, whose friends also address me as "Aunt Virginia." I am keeping company with a very sensible man who does not approve of "Tom, Dick and Harry" calling me "Aunt," although they are all of the feminine gender who call me so. What shall I do?

VIRGINIA.

While your problem is not a serious one, it is annoying and I do not blame you or the man for an aversion to the provincial custom. A good many grandmothers go through the same thing, saying nothing. They know the practice probably comes through affection or affectionate regard, but it is none-the-less irritating. It is really a familiarity which no one (especially when it is done because of age) should be obligated to combat.

Couldn't you drop a hint to that niece or nephew who is nearest (and there always is a nearest one) that while you have never spoken of it before, it is just a little out of place. Doesn't she think they would like to call you something else? In the South there is a rather pretty custom of close friends (but not others) prefixing "Miss" to the given name, whether one is married or not. "Miss Virginia," I am sure would be much better than "Aunt Virginia." Certainly new friends should call you "Miss Bartels" or whatever your last name happens to be.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I should like to say a few words to the young man who signs himself "Disgusted Harry." Some of what I have to say, I hope he will take as friendly advice.

I am afraid that Harry is like the great majority of men—he wants a girl who won't talk about herself at all—but who will listen to him, or talk about his own experience. Doesn't she think they would like to call you something else? In the South there is a rather pretty custom of close friends (but not others) prefixing "Miss" to the given name, whether one is married or not. "Miss Virginia," I am sure would be much better than "Aunt Virginia." Certainly new friends should call you "Miss Bartels" or whatever your last name happens to be.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I should like to say a few words to the young man who signs himself "Disgusted Harry." Some of what I have to say, I hope he will take as friendly advice.

I am afraid that Harry is like the great majority of men—he wants a girl who won't talk about herself at all—but who will listen to him, or talk about his own experience. It is an open secret among girls that men prefer to be listened to—not talked to. That is one of the first lessons to be learned by the girl who wants men to think her "interesting." I know this to be so, for it has been my own experience. I used to be considered "intelligent." But I wasn't popular. Finally it dawned on me that all that was necessary was to make it plain to the male that one was in a receptive frame of mind for whatever great truths he cared to utter—and one's success was assured.

I will admit, in all fairness, that there are exceptions to this rule—it has been my privilege to know a very few.

But many a man who is very brilliant, like the some only average woman—because she has the divine gift of being able to listen.

TEACHER.

DEAR MARTHA: I am a business girl, 20, and considered attractive. When I was 19, while working for a large concern, I fell in love with a young man. At first, I tried to hold back this feeling and didn't want to let it get too strong a hold of me, but found it was impossible, although I hid my feelings from him. Later on, I learned he was in love with me also. My mother, although not quite sure this party is the one I care for but knows there is someone, says the love I think I have for him is only infatuation. Mrs. Carr, would you consider it infatuation if I tell you I do not care to go out on dates with anyone and only want to be in his company, which is during office hours and only occasionally, very, very seldom during an evening when it can be arranged without letting it be known. This person is married, and at this point of my letter, no doubt, you are thinking I am foolish to think of him as I do. He does not love me, but I love only me, and have proven it hundreds of times, not alone in what he has said but also in his actions. Now, here is my question: Couldn't we continue to care for each other as we do now, if we do not harm anyone else, if he does not know about it, but he would be more than willing to get a divorce, if the grounds were available, but she is a wonderful wife to him, and although I realize it isn't fair to her, I can't stop loving him, regardless of what anyone might like me to do or not do. He and I enjoy each other's company immensely and hope to continue to do so forever and ever. My mother suspects him as being the one I care for and is under the impression that he means "no good by our little Neil," but she is wrong.

NELL.

If in this impossible situation there were any question of harming the man's wife by your association with her husband (which there is not) certainly there is no question about the conditions being harmful to you, from the standpoint of honor, if nothing else. I believe the man himself, probably realizes this and is telling you as best he can, that he wishes to be out of it. Most mothers would not only "suspect" but would do something about the situation. The only thing for you to do is look for another job and have the back-bone and character to get this man out of your life. You will be sure to find a more legitimate and conscientious friend.

DEAR MRS. CARR: What is the best thing for me to do when I enter high school in September, for two or four years? I have signed up for four years. I am asking this because I have a chance after high school to take up "beauty culture." I am just 13 years old and figure on taking a business course in high school. Will I be too old at seventeen to start beauty culture? Mother prefers me to finish my high school.

DOT.

Take your four years in high school, by all means. Certainly you will be too old to start beauty culture after that. You will be better prepared for it.

DEAR MRS. CARR: What should a girl call her friends of the opposite sex, if not "boy friends"? That is common, isn't it?

I am 16 years old, five feet, five and one-half inches. How much should I weigh? What are the most becoming colors for me—my face is brown, my features ordinary, hair brown and wavy, eyes brown. How should I arrange my hair?

HEALTH

Brief articles prepared by experts. Edited by Dr. Togo Goldstein, for the New York Academy of Medicine.

Types of Arthritis

IN the naming and defining of diseases, modern medicine suffers from a Babel-like confusion of tongues.

Some diseases are named according to the organs they involve; others according to the disease form produced; still others, according to their symptoms.

But some diseases are named according to their discoverers or the germs producing them.

This observation is evoked by the problem represented in an attempt to define arthritis.

Though spoken of as a disease, it is more strictly a disease condition of unknown and varied origin.

The known facts about arthritis are that the disease involves one or more joints and that there are structural changes in the joints, presenting different degrees of deformity and loss of function.

Arthritis may be caused by or associated with a large number of other diseases.

Thus we find arthritis as a complication of pneumonia, measles, mumps, scarlet fever, typhoid and other forms of infectious diseases.

There are many cases of arthritis which exist and are independent of any or all of these diseases. In fact, the largest number of cases are due to still undetermined causes.

In former times many different types of arthritis were defined and named. In recent years, however, the classification has been simplified and only two great types of arthritis are spoken of.

In the atrophic type the destructive features predominate. There is a marked tendency for the bone and cartilage tissues in the joint and surrounding structures to shrink.

In the hypertrophic type the overgrowth features predominate, the joint becoming enlarged, sometimes to a grotesque size.

THE MURDER OF THE CHOIR SINGERS

CHAPTER EIGHT.

COLT turned away with a pained expression, as if he had been shaken.

He was moving around the room slowly, despite some other weakness, some revealing blunder—

"There!" he called suddenly, and fell to his knees. He stretched an arm, then lifted up a tiny object in his hand like a chip from a star.

"We have now," he exulted, "the missing diamond of our woman in the boat. Tony, think of it! The gone here—probably in this room. And with diabolical traces of the crime have been obliterated as if by magic."

Without finishing his sentence, he put the diamond ear-drop carefully away in his wallet and resumed his search, coming presently to the closed door of a closet. Here he made a remarkable discovery. The door was unlocked, and when opened revealed that the space within, including the shelves, was not only empty but covered with a long accumulation of dust. With his flash-light playing over all the wall, shelf, floor, and door area, he was able to see that the door had been opened by what he read in signs and indications too subtle, or obscure, for my less observing glances.

"Notice, Tony," he said at last, "the disturbance in the floor dust. It is too trampled to offer a useful footprint. But there are 'marks' that must have been made by feet, though they are jumbled out of recognition—for look here—the walls and side-posts confirm the theory. This large mark here is where a human head has rested. This is the mark of an elbow. And there are several finger-prints. The height of the person who hid in this closet could hardly be more than five foot six. I wonder if this was the murderer's hiding place."

For a long five minutes, Thatcher Colt continued to study the marks left in the dust of the closet. When he finally turned away, after shutting the door, his eyes were more thoughtful than ever. Around the room he continued to prow until, lying on the mantel-shelf, he saw a framed picture of Modjeska, a paper bag was found. Opening it carefully, Colt sifted out on his palm some flakes of a reddish-brown substance.

THE MURDER OF THE CHOIR SINGER

CHAPTER EIGHT.

COLT turned away with a pained expression, as if his artistic confidence had been shaken.

He was moving around the room slowly, deliberately, seeking some other weakness, some revealing blunder.

"There!" he called suddenly, and fell to his knees. Under the drape he stretched an arm, then lifted up a tiny object that glittered in his hand like a chip from a star.

"We have now," he exulted, "the missing diamond from the right ear of our woman in the boat. Tony, think of it! The murders were done here—probably in this room. And with diabolical cunning, the traces of the crime have been obliterated as if by magic except!"

Without finishing his sentence, he put the diamond ear-drop carefully away in his wallet and resumed his search, coming presently to the closed door of a closet. Here he made a remarkable discovery.

The door was unlocked, and when opened revealed that the space within, including the shelves, was not only empty but covered with a long accumulation of dust. With his flashlight playing over all the wall, shelf, floor, and door area of this closet, Colt was manifestly excited by what he read in signs and indications too subtle or obscure for my less observing glance.

"Notice, Tony," he said at last, "the disturbance in the floor dust. It is too trampled to offer a useful footprint. But there are 'marks' that must have been made by feet, though they are jumbled out of recognition—for look here—the walls and side-posts confirm the theory. This large mark here is where a human head has rested. This is the mark of an elbow. And there are several finger-prints. The height of the person who hid in this closet could hardly be more than five foot six. I wonder if this was the murderer's hiding place."

For a long five minutes, Thatcher continued to study the marks left in the dust of the closet. When he finally turned away, after shutting the door, his eyes were more thoughtful than ever. Around the room he continued to prowling until lying on the mantel-shelf, back of a framed picture of Modjeska, a paper bag was found. On his palm some flakes of a reddish-brown substance.

"What is that, chief?" I asked as he peered over at me with a quizzical smile. "Dulse, Tony."

"Dulse?" "Yes—a sea-weed. It is much relished as a vegetable in Scotland. St. Johns in New Brunswick, and certain portions of Nova Scotia. It seems quite fresh."

"What could it be doing here?" "That is a question worth remembering," was Colt's cryptic rejoinder. At that moment, I heard a low whistle—Neil McMahon calling me from the garden below.

Colt turned sharply to the watchman.

"Will you bring my man up here," he asked, as he hastened to the telephone. Again with a handkerchief in each hand, he calmly called the number of the Morgue.

"Hello. This is the Police Commissioner. Please connect me instantly with District Attorney Dougherty. If he is there."

As he waited, Thatcher Colt said to me:

"I am beginning to suspect, Tony, that we are face to face with the most damnable clever killer in all my experience. And yet he did forget that knife—Hello! Dougherty. I am now in the house where those two people were killed. Yes? Yes! Never mind all that now. Listen! Come up here as quickly as possible. Bring Fegley, Merkle and Williams. And not a word to the reporters yet. Hurry. 13 Sangster terrace—the house with the red door."

His face was aglow with the rest of the chase as he hung up the receiver and faced Neil McMahon in the doorway.

"Well, Neil?" "We know the man, chief."

"Well?" McMahon produced his notebook.

"He is the Rev. Dr. Timothy Beazley, rector of the Church of St. Michael and All Angels," read Neil heavily.

"Where is that?" "East Eighty-second street."

"Has anybody been up there except the policeman who made the discovery?" "Oh, no, sir. You gave orders."

"Good. What happened?" "The officer on the post rang the door-bell. The lady of the house said her husband was overdue and she was worried about him. So he telephoned, and he was waiting for orders."

"That's all right. Now, Neil, please wait down at the front door for Dougherty and lead him up here."

"Formed any theory of how it happened?" I asked, when we were left alone.

Thatcher Colt shook his head. The rain swashed against the window.

He raised his hands as if in exorcism, casting out devils.

"Except," he continued, "in that shell note that touched his voice only when he was deeply excited, that someone planned this bloody stratagem with fiendish patience, industry, and skill. The hand that used that knife did not tremble—we are looking for a cool, calm, and rather imaginative murderer this time."

He released into silence. I saw

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham-Bonner

The Brave Failure

THE Little Black Clock, with his magic power over time, had turned it back to the year 1912.

He had turned it back for their previous adventure so they had seen Alcock and Brown on the first non-stop airplane flight across the Atlantic ocean, but now he said he was turning it back a few weeks before that flight.

They saw two men working over a biplane in which there were a light boat and oars and an air-bar in case the men had to land on the sea.

They also saw that the plane had an under-carriage which the Clock told them would be dropped over the ocean, for without it they would go much more quickly, even though it would be harder for them to land.

The men didn't seem to mind the unpleasant weather. They wanted so much to be the first to cross the Atlantic.

John and Peggy dreaded what might happen. They knew that these men could not be successful. The Clock had distinctly said that Alcock and Brown were the first to make a non-stop flight.

And suddenly the Little Black Clock shouted:

"I'm using plenty of magic now, for now I'll find out what a little Danish schooner. Then we'll find out what happened."

No sooner had the Clock said this than they found themselves on a funny little old tramp boat, which fascinated John as he almost forgot about the two flyers until he heard a terrific noise.

The sea was rough and wild, but it wasn't only the noise of the sea that they heard.

It was the sound of a plane and of men shouting.

Add a drop or two of salad oil to mustard when it is being mixed. It will add flavor and keep it fresh.

"Since we tried your Modern Product, Healthful Coffee, we find it so much of an improvement over the old way of making coffee that my husband told me to throw the coffee pot out of the window and if it ever came back in the kitchen he would throw me out of the window. He was, of course, joking but I don't blame him for making the threat. We enjoy coffee as never before since we are using your Modern Products and we have just commenced using your Modern Tea. To say it's

COMBINE SEAFOODS
IN TASTY DISHES
Crabmeat and Shrimp Served in Ramekins Has a Very Professional Air.
Now that the "crab season" is in a combination of crab and shrimp is a particularly good one.
Not, however, that it has to be limited to the use of either fresh cooked crab or shrimp, for the canned varieties may be used equally well. Week-end guests may well be impressed by such a dish
served for Sunday night supper,
or on Saturday night for that matter.
Make enough of it, that is the important point.
Crab and Shrimp Dish.
For six servings you will need
two packed cups of cooked crab
meat and one cup cooked shrimp, cut in pieces. In terms of cans take a pound can of crab and a can of shrimp. If fresh crabs are used have ready a large pan of boiling water, add to it one tablespoon salt and one-fourth teaspoon cayenne pepper. Drop in the live crabs and boil gently for 15 to 20 minutes, or until the crabs are bright red in color. Drain, cool and pick out the meat.
To make this tasty dish melt
one-half cup butter in a saucepan, stir in one-fourth cup flour and when mixed add one and one-half cups milk and one-half cup thin
cream or undiluted evaporated milk. Stir constantly over a slow fire until the sauce is thickened, smooth and boiling. Add one tablespoon lemon juice, one teaspoon salt and one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Stir the seasonings in well and then add one cup cooked shrimp, cut in pieces, and two cups flaked crab meat. Mix lightly, cook slowly for five minutes or until hot and pour into buttered ramekins or serve on slices of toast or hot biscuits that have been split and arranged on hot plates. If put in ramekins, sprinkle each with two teaspoons buttered breadcrumbs and brown in a hot oven, serving from ramekins to the table.
Shrimp have thin black intestinal veins running along the top which must be removed before using the fish. Canned shrimp are,
of course, ready to use, except for removing the intestinal vein.
This sea food mixture may be kept hot over boiling water. Serve with a sliced tomato salad, or a salad of beets and celery, or stuffed celery; ripe and green olives
and radishes, hot or iced coffee
and a simple fruit dessert.

HOW TO KEEP THE COOKIE JAR FILLED
Modern Methods of Making These Pastries Make Baking Day Less Strenuous.
Whether the demand for cookies
is responsible for the present return to favor of the family cookie jar, or whether the brilliant appearance of modern cookie jars has caused a renewed interest in cookies, is an interesting question for discussion; but whatever the cause
the fact remains that cookie jars have returned to favor and that they should be kept filled.
Homemade cookies, when they are carefully baked, have an especial appeal, particularly now that the days of cold fruit drinks are here again. Crisp, crunchy cookies flavored with chocolate, or cinnamon, or vanilla, or filled with nuts or coconut or fruit—like your choice for a number of varieties
may be quickly made nowadays in a short time.
Old-fashioned baking days were busy times when the stove had to be fired to just the right point, and yards and yards of cookie dough rolled out, shaped and baked. Today we have ovens that may be heated by the turn of a wrist to just the right temperature, and the newer method of cookie making does away with a lot of rolling and fussing with the dough. Icebox cookies, these never ones are called, because the dough is shaped in a roll or a block, chilled and cut with a sharp knife in thin slices before baking. There are times when the homemaker wants fancy shaped tid-bits, and does not mind
the time required for the process.
But it is good to know that it is possible to turn out dozens of excellent cookies without getting all stuck up with dough.
The following recipes are for several kinds of cookies made by several methods, including the chilled and sliced ones.
Chocolate Cookies.
Work together one-half cup shortening and one cup sugar until thoroughly blended. Add one egg and beat well. Then stir in two squares of melted unsweetened
chocolate and one-half cup milk.
Sift together two cups flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon. Stir this into the liquid mixture and mix well. Add gradually enough more flour to make a dough that can just be handled.
Turn out on a floured board and shape in a roll about one and one-half inches in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper and chill for several hours or overnight in the icebox.
Slice down in thin slices with a sharp knife and place on a greased baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) for 10 minutes.
Remove from the pans and if desired cover some of them with white or colored icing. Store in a cookie jar or box. Makes about four dozen.
Bran Macaroons.
Bran macaroons are delicious
with lemonade, or any fruit drink
for that matter. Beat two eggs with one cup of sugar until very light. Then stir in three tablespoons of bran, three tablespoons sifted flour and a few grains of salt. Next add one cup finely chopped nuts—any kind, or of coconut. Drop from a teaspoon on to well greased pans, allowing a good inch for spreading. Bake in a moderate oven—375 degrees
—for 10 minutes. Remove at once from the pan, cool and pack in a jar. Makes about two dozen small macaroons.
Vanilla Wafers.
Vanilla wafers are an old time favorite. Cream together one-third

LAVAL GETS CONFIDENCE VOTE ON DEBT IN SENATE

French Premier Wins After Vehement Debate; Will Be Able to Continue Negotiations With Mellon on Hoover Plan.

MAIN POINTS AT ISSUE OUTLINED

Situation Seems to Demand Concessions; Both Sides "Cordial but Firm;" President Keeps Informed by Phone.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, June 30.—The French Senate sustained the Government's course on the Hoover plan today by a vote of 197 to 5, about 100 abstaining from voting. The vote followed heated debate, in which the American President's proposal for a year's suspension of war debts and a moratorium on reparations payments was vehemently attacked and Premier Laval made a plea for confidence "which," he said, "we need more today than yesterday and which we may need more tomorrow than today."

Laval told the Senate the negotiations with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and United States Ambassador Edge were "the most delicate which have arisen since the war." He said he wanted to speak frankly with the Senators, but he could not openly discuss the Hoover proposal and the French reply in view of negotiations still going on.

Mellon and Edge Confer.
In the meantime Mellon and Edge conferred at length in the latter's residence, re-examining every angle of the French-American negotiations and groping for new light on how to insure an agreement on the Hoover moratorium plan.

They had talked during the night by trans-Atlantic telephone with Acting Secretary of State William R. Castle Jr. in Washington on the latest French modifications and President Hoover himself was understood to have listened in by a special system installed in the White House. Inasmuch as he is never called direct, this device enables him to intervene in the conversations and make suggestions.

The differences arising in the Mellon-Laval negotiations which Laval took to the Senate.

Debate in French Senate.
Senator L'Emery, radical Socialist, who previously had declared "we have a knife at our throats," made a violent attack on the Hoover proposal in the Senate debate. "Two years ago," he said, "the United States took us by the throat to force money from us for war debts and now they are taking us by the throat to prevent us from collecting reparations from Germany."

The Senator argued that the United States should guarantee Germany would not use the money gained by the reparations holiday. It was not impossible, he said, that the money would be used to continue building up an attacking fleet of such vessels as the new vest pocket cruiser Deutschland.

L'Emery declared the trouble with the Hoover plan was that it either was for one year, which is not enough to do any good, or it would extend for too long a period.

"The French reply does not satisfy me," he said. "It was written in haste, which nothing justified. The prestige of the United States is so great that our Government was blinded by the American headlight."

De Jovenel Charges.
Senator Henry de Jovenel charged the German crisis was not due to reparations but was caused by Militarism and other Nationalist elements in Germany. He cited figures in an attempt to prove that the credits of Germany slumped after the success of Adolf Hitler's followers in the last election.

Jovenel declared the German negotiations with the United States really started last January, through United States Ambassador Sack in Berlin. After the Germans had sufficiently impressed Sack with the necessity of doing something, he went home and the Germans
